CORCORAN DELAY IS HINTED

Trial of Blackmail Cases Set for Tomorrow; Several to Face Court

While the trial of William J. Corcoran and other members of Boston's alleged blackmail ring was scheduled to open tomorrow there were few signs today that the actual trial would get under way so soon.

According to some expectations today Corcoran will not be on hand tomorrow.

In this connection there was report that steps might be taken to arrest him. He is out in $50,000 bands. It has been supposed by many that he furnished cash bail from his own funds. But the understanding now is that the bail was raised by others and that Corcoran is without money.

It is expected various counsel for the defendants may put in appearance and that preliminary steps will be taken leading to setting of a definite trial date.

Other defendants indicted with Corcoran in this case include Leo Corcoran, his brother; Harry E. Levinsky, J. Warren Kane, Michael J. Lyons, Theodore Bearse, Francis Duggan and his wife, Teresa Duggan; Peggy Purdy Partridge and Omar Kaiteh, alias Max Rothschild.

BANDITS ATTACK WOMAN

Two Ransack Home in Brighton as Third Menaces Her With Gun

Three men forced entrance to the home of Mrs. Mabel James, No. 19 Radnor road, in Brighton's most exclusive section, held her captive at pistol point, ransacked the house and then fled in a red touring car after changing number plates.

Bruised by being hurled against a door and suffering from shock, Mrs. James today gave police a description of the robbers and told of her experiences trying to outwit the thugs as they threatened her with the pistol.

The auto whirled up to the James house. Some men trimming trees on the Shepard estate adjoining the James estate noted the machine bore Washington, D. C., plates.

ALL YOUNG MEN.

Three men, from thirty to thirty-five years, leaped out, almost ran up the front walk and as one rang the front door bell two went to the rear.

The man at the front told Mrs.

Attacked, according to her story, at a Melrose party, after it was believed that she was a "plant" in the Preston murder case, Mrs. Raab says she heard a woman suggest that she knew too much and that they better take her in an automobile and throw her off the Wellington Bridge.

MRS. MARY O'LEARY RAAB

"LOUD ACTED LIKE A GENTLEMAN; PLENTY OF LIQUOR THERE"

The much-sought "silent couple" who were present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl P. Dow, No. 2 Rowe street, Melrose, the night of the party when Mrs. Mary O'Leary Raab was assaulted, were found today by the Boston American.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Smallman, of No. 173 Bellevue avenue, Melrose Highlands, a socially prominent and highly respected young couple.

The Smallmans left the Dow party, Mrs. Smallman asserted today, when it became apparent that she and her husband were not congenial with the other guests, and with the nature of the party.

"My husband and I have known the Dow family since Mrs. Dow did us a very kind favor several years ago," asserted Mrs. Smallman, an extremely attractive young matron, "and we dropped in on the party in a way more or less accidental.

"There were about ten or twelve persons present. Some of the women did appear to be rather flashy and there was plenty of liquor. I was introduced to an attractive-looking young woman who was described to me as 'Miss Mary Donalds.'

"She was dressed in a black silk dress and wore a red dress hat. I cannot say that this young woman acted in any other way than as a lady. In fact her conduct was more refined than several others of those present.

"Not knowing the Dow family very intimately, I did not know many of the people I met there.

WAR DEBT PUZZLE STICKS HARDING

Washington, Oct. 31.—President Harding is willing to award a prize for any practical concrete suggestion for the collection of the foreign indebtedness to the United States.

This government was said to be still wholly averse to the opinion advanced by several foreign spokesmen, that the solution of the debt problem lies in cancellation. Mr. Harding was reported as feeling that he could suggest no way at present to enforce collection except by going to war, which he had no intention of doing.

Mrs. Frances Burns broke down and cried in South Boston court today, when her husband, James J. Burns, of No. 16 Newman street, was charged with having attacked sixteen-year-old Ethel Hattenburg. Burns was held in $25,000 by the Grand Jury. Ethel Hattenburg lives in Fifth street, South Boston. According to the police, Burns had been giving her bits of money and, on October 22, lured her to his room by giving her money and candy.

FRANCE, ITALY, MAY DEFEAT NAVY TREATY

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 31.—The five-power naval treaty produced by the Washington armament conference at such a cost of time and effort and hailed as marking a new era in the world's history, is in serious danger of dying a slow, easy death.

This disconcerting fact was borne home today on officials of the American government by developments abroad, which have put ratification of the treaty into the far distant future.

The treaty does not become operative until all the five powers have ratified it and deposited their ratifications in Washington. Great

EATS 73 PANCAKES ON A VOTING BET

New York, Oct. 31.—The world is hereby informed that Jim Hartnett ate seventy-three pancakes soaked in butter and plastered with jam. He is therefore the champion pancake eater of his district, and he is willing to take on anybody for the pan-cake championship of the world.

And because Jim Hartnett stuffed seventy-three pancakes inside himself and then walked home, though feebly, Dick Topley and John McKenna, who, with Hartnett, hail from Westbury, L. I., have agreed to vote for Warner Bateman, the Democratic nominee for Congress.

They challenged Hartnett for a pancake eating contest, and Hartnett agreed if they would make their votes the stake.

BRIDE FLED SOUTH AFTER MURDER, SAYS MRS. RAAB

OVERHEARD GIRL CLAIM SHE FOOLED POLICE

unaccompanied by his wife. He drank with the rest, but not to excess. As far as I know, he conducted himself like a gentleman. I could sense a feeling, however, that my husband and I were something in the nature of 'wet blankets' as far as the joy of the party was concerned, and I indicated to him early in the evening my desire to go home.

"When one round of liquor had been served the party, my husband and I excused ourselves and went home. That was about ten or half-past ten. Later I learned that the party had developed into an all-night affair."

A woman named Mary — Mary O'Leary Raab — revived, in a sensational manner, investigation of the night shooting of Patrolman James Arthur Preston of Wakefield.

Another woman named Mary—second name at present withheld—is sought by the police. If she is found it is believed the mystery of the slaying of the Yankee Division veteran, which was considered a closed incident following the acquittal of Clarence W. Loud, will be solved.

The second Mary is the Somerville bride, who is alleged by the first Mary to have incited the attack on her which resulted in the re-opening of the investigation. According to Mrs. Raab's story, she suggested that Mrs. Raab be killed, on the principle that "dead dames don't squeal."

The high light in the story told by Mrs. Raab is that a woman shot Preston and that the death car carried two men and two women, instead of one couple, as hitherto supposed.

Now a married couple in Somerville are being sought as possible eye-witnesses of the slaying, or at least as possessors of highly important information, and the city of Melrose is on the qui vive pending further developments. The Middlesex county grand jury convenes next Monday, a fact that has quickened speculation.

District Attorney Saltonstall is not showing his hand. Beyond the fact that he is known to have conferred with Mrs. Raab and her counsel, Attorney Robert E. Harding of Boston, and that he secured a stenographer's transcript of the girl's account of the Saturday night revel that led to the disclosures, Mr. Saltonstall's plans are a strict official secret.

FLED TO NEW ORLEANS.

Some of the officials, especially police in Melrose, today scouted the Mary Raab's story and predicted that nothing would come from it. In other quarters a re-opening of the Wakefield policeman tragedy and possible arrests were looked for.

The Somerville bride named "Mary," who is alleged by Mrs. Raab to have incited the attack on her at the party in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl P. Dow, No. 2 Rowe street, fled to New Orleans and worked as a waitress after the shooting of Jim Preston, according to Mrs. Raab's version of the affair. She is said to have learned that she was listed among the grand jury witnesses.

"'Didn't I fool the cops nice when I skipped to New Orleans and got a job as waitress in a cafe? This Raab girl here is a plant. She knows too much. Let's lug her away in our car and drop her over Wellington bridge.'

"That's what my daughter heard that other Mary say while my girl lay apparently unconscious on the floor in the Dow kitchen," said Mrs. Dennis O'Leary, mother of Mrs. Raab.

HEALD EVERY WORD.

"My Mary wasn't senseless, though. Whatever they did to her or gave her numbed her limbs and made them useless and produced a half sleep, but though her eyes were closed she heard every word they spoke as she lay gagged and bound. She heard that other girl from Somerville say that she didn't believe my Mary came from the South at all, but that she was sent to watch and that the only thing to do was to put my girl out of the way.

"Mary told me that with her own lips when she dragged herself home after 3 o'clock a week ago Sunday morning. Her hair was hanging loose, her dress was nearly torn off her. It was in shreds and she was wet all over as if she had been overboard and she was pale and exhausted and hysterical.

FEARED FOR HER LIFE.

"I asked her what had happened. She repeated every word they had said to her at that party where she feared for her very life. She said they held her prisoner, but that she finally escaped and ran from the house screaming.

"If she had invented the story, how is it that decent neighbors heard her calling for help? Doesn't that support my daughter's story? Didn't we call up the home of Mr. Lord on the corner of Rowe street where Mary told me a woman had kindly offered her refuge and confirm the fact that my Mary fled down the street screaming for help at that hour of a Sunday morning?

"And I hear the police and others have hinted at blackmail. That's an outrageous lie. Mary's parents did not start this story. Let that be remembered by the public. We have never even gone to the police. Neighbors told of it first and finally things came to such a pass that my daughter consulted Mr. Harding, her lawyer, and he went with her to District Attorney Saltonstall.

SEEKING JUSTICE.

"The matter is now in the hand of the State. All we seek is justice. It was not proper that my daughter or any girl should have been thus pumpeled and threatened. It should be ified to the bottom.

"They've even said that my daughter had two husbands at once and a lot of other trash. There's something strange back of all this. Why should a well-dressed man come in an automobile next night and offer Mary $4,000 to leave the State?

"Why should a relative of a certain woman offer $100 to settle for the damage to Mary's party dress and clothing? Why should he try to tell me that he had interviewed the Somerville guests and that they told him my daughter had left the Dow house early that Saturday night and did not return until midnight, and that they then denied her admittance?

TELEPHONED DAUGHTER.

"Why should he say that when I myself telephoned to the Dow home as early as eleven o'clock that night and talked with Mary about some flowers she had lost? They ought to invent a better alibi.

"Blackmail? The very thought is an insult. My husband told the man who offered to settle for $100 that he didn't want a cent of his dirty money. I demanded that they apologize to my girl.

"When the relative in question asked me what the dress of my daughter was worth I told him that she had bought it a few days before to go to a party in Dorchester and that it cost $35 or $40 and that her hat and other clothing might total $75 and that she was a hard-working girl and could not afford to have her things destroyed. The dress was of black satin trimmed with canton lace. We didn't seek money. We wanted the truth of the affair.

"My daughter said from what she overheard there were four at the scene of the murder, two men and two women. The girl who fled to New Orleans was the first to become suspicious of my Mary. They thought my daughter was a Southern girl and were shocked to learn that her parents lived right here in Melrose and that her name was O'Leary.

MOTHER UNNERVED.

"After working in New Orleans as a waitress this other Mary returned to Boston and married. They live in Somerville somewhere. I don't know the details, nor do I want to. I am just recovering from an operation and this thing has unnerved me completely.

"This girl who took the lead against my daughter remarked, while Mary appeared to be unconscious, according to Mary, that she had fooled the police while they were hunting for the 'Alice Dennett' whose name figured in the case.

"How did my daughter become acquainted with the Dows? A friend introduced her. She went to the Dows several times a week since she first met them last August. If she didn't go they telephoned for her. Mr. Dow must have telephoned fifty times. He sometimes called, and so did a man who was first introduced to Mary as a motion picture man, but who later turned out to be Clarence Loud. Loud called here, too, for Mary.

"My husband and I looked into the matter next day. On Monday morning a large, well-dressed man, dark complexioned and heavily built, called in a green-tinted automobile. He looked prosperous. He was a stranger to me, but I could identify him if I saw him again.

SAYS MAN OFFERED $4,000.

"He asked for Mary. I told him she had gone to the store. He started away. I watched the car and saw it pull up a short distance down the street and saw the man approach Mary, who was coming home. He stopped her. A few minutes later Mary rushed into the house crying. She was breathless. She told us that the man had offered her $4,000 to leave the State and keep quiet.

"There were visitors present who heard her story. Then Mary consulted her lawyer and they went to see the district attorney. My Mary can account for her husbands. She first married Peter Spudick of Pittsburg, a sailor in the navy, when she was sixteen. That was a runaway affair. She never lived with him and he secured a divorce from her on the ground of desertion in Oklahoma City three years ago. They were married in 1917.

TWICE MARRIED.

"After the divorce Spudick remarried and recently wrote to Mary and told her about his wife and child and wished my daughter the best of luck. Two years ago Mary married Samuel Raab, a native of Portugal, in Boston. She never lived with him either. She never had a husband named Gordon. That was her stage name. After she left school she had a juvenile part in a traveling stock company. The manager told her that Gordon was a better stage name than O'Leary and she adopted it. She was with the troupe four months and traveled over the country.

"She's working now in Boston as a bookkeeper. Her lawyer has her marriage and divorce records. They are above reproach."

MARRIAGE RECORDED.

The records in the City Clerk's office in Melrose show that Mary Teresa O'Leary was married to Peter Spudick of Pittsburg, Pa., when she was sixteen. The bridegroom gave his age as twenty-one. He was a bluejacket on the U. S. S. Chester at the time and gave the home of his bride's parents as his temporary abode. He cited that his father was born in Germany and his mother in Austria.

The Rev. Hugh Wallace Smith, an Episcopal clergyman of Melrose married the couple on August 18, 1917. The bride gave her parents' names as Dennie O'Leary and Nora O'Connor and stated that both were born in Ireland.

Failure of Mrs. Raab and her parents to lodge a complaint with the Melrose police is looked upon with suspicion by officials in that city. Some of them brand the story as the "frenzied concoction of a half-dazed, romantic, hysterical girl." They say that most of her story must have originated in her own brain. But that a silent investigation is under way, so far as the district attorney's office was concerned, was obvious. What will develop from it is another matter.

Mary Gibson Among Those First Questioned

Resumption of the investigation of the murder of James A. Preston, Wakefield policeman, recalled today the fact that Mrs. Mary Gibson, a Boston waitress, was questioned by former District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts shortly after the finding of the body.

Mary Gibson was examined as to her movements on the night of Saturday, April 8, when Preston met his death, and furnished an alibi which was acceptable to Tufts and State police.

The authorities then were vague as to their reasons for wishing to quiz her, but it later became known that interest first grew because she moved from Melrose Highlands to Boston a few hours after the crime.

Later it leaked out that Mary Gibson had been seen near Greenwood station, Wakefield, walking toward Melrose, the course the murder mystery woman is supposed to have taken. To the police she described how she had slept past her station, got off the train at Greenwood and walked to her home. Mrs. Gibson denied knowing Clarence Loud and was able to account for her movements in Boston that night. She moved, she asserted, to go with her sister, Miss Irene Dolley.

JUDGE FORBIDS GIRL OF 17 TO ELOPE

New Bedford, Oct. 31.—Love's sweet young dream was shattered and an elopement called off when District Court Judge ordered Elsie Mudge, seventeen years old, to forget her love affair and behave.

Elsie was arraigned on complaint of her father, William M. Mudge, who accused her of being a stubborn child. The girl's parents have been separated for more than a year and she has been living with her father.

The court beamed on the young woman and said: "Three days is too short a time for a girl to pick a husband, especially a girl as young as you are. You must forget all about the love affair, and all about any elopement and behave."

Hylan's 'Sincerely Yours' Letter Stirs Hubby

New York, Oct. 31.—Herbert C. Drescher, an attorney, has written Mayor Hylan, objecting to the Mayor sending Mrs. Drescher a letter advocating a candidate for the Supreme Court justiceship and ending, "sincerely yours."

"Replying to your letter to my wife," Mr. Drescher's letter read, "allow me to record my strongest objection to your 'sincerely yours' closing. Such objections are made because of the fact that my wife is a married woman, who, I am informed, has never been introduced formally or otherwise to Your Honor. Hence a letter written even by the Mayor of this city to a lady who is not even an acquaintance should not be closed, in my humble opinion, along that 'sincerely yours' line preceding your signature."

DESERTED WIFE SEEKS MISSING HUSBAND

Forced to ask State aid so that she could feed and clothe her three children and herself, Mrs. John C. Proctor, No. 136 Chelsea street, Charlestown, has appealed to the Boston American for aid in locating her husband, who has been missing since last August.

The children are: Pearl, aged three and a half; Marguerite, aged two, and John, Jr., aged seven months.

Mrs. Proctor last heard from her husband while he was working in and exclusive club here as a bell boy, and thinks that he is following that occupation either here or in Canada.

POMEROY VIEWS WARDEN'S BODY IN PRISON

Jess Pomeroy, the life-prisoner, and a half-dozen long-term men in Charlestown State Prison, were allowed to view the body of the late Warden Elmer E. Shattuck just before it was borne from house to church for the funeral today.

Pomeroy gazed at the lifeless features a moment, then moved slowly away, saying: "I lost my best friend when Warden Shattuck died."

Pomeroy and the others who were allowed this privilege were escorted across the corridor from the rotunda of the prison into the warden's residence. They did not have to go outside the prison grounds.

The funeral was in the First Baptist Church at Austin and Lawrence streets, Charlestown. The church was crowded. Governor Cox and many others in public life were there.

MAY DEFEAT NAVAL TREATY

Britain, the United States and Japan—the 5-5-3—powers have ratified.

France and Italy powers have not ratified and there is little likelihood of their doing so soon. The governments of France and Italy, which negotiated the treaty, have fallen and both have been succeeded by governments of a more imperialistic turn of mind. The new governments may never ratify the treaty.

'L' PAYS CITY TAX UNDER PROTEST

The Boston Elevated and West End Street Railway companies today paid their taxes, "under protest." Both corporations have petitioned the board of assessors for abatements upon their assessed valuation.

The Elevated sent City Collector William M. McMorrow a check for $384,658, and the West End sent a check for $180,915. Other checks arriving today from big tax payers who seek to avoid paying interest on their taxes, interest being computed from November 1, were William A. Gaston, $56,864; the Eben D. Jordan estate, $115,702; Augustus Hemenway, $110,782.

Collector McMorrow received $1,954,000 in taxes and expects today's total to reach nearly $2,000,000. Interest at six per cent. per annum will be collected on all taxes unpaid after today.

WIELDS MIGHTY MEAN CLUB ON GLASS

John Donaher of No. 580 East Second street, South Boston, owned two stores with big plate-glass windows. He still owns the stores.

He told Judge Logan in South Boston Court today that he had ordered Thomas Kannazaro from one of the stores. Kannazaro went, but in the still dead hours of the night, according to witnesses, he returned with a lead pipe and thoughts of revenge.

He thumped on the plate-glass windows until they were no more.

Judge Logan found him guilty of malicious destruction of property and assessed him $50.

The judge didn't impose a jail sentence only through consideration of the wife and three children.

ULSTERITES CONFER ON BRITISH VOTE

Belfast, Oct. 31.—A delegation of 200 were on their way from Belfast to England today to put the claims of Ulster before the British electors.

A contest in the forthcoming elections to the Imperial Parliament is probable in only one of the thirteen constituencies in Ulster. The doubtful district is the joint division of Fermanagh and Tyrone, where the Sinn Feiners and Nationalists outnumber the Unionists.

SEARCH FIRE RUINS FOR GIRLS' BODIES

New York, Oct. 31.—Search for the bodies of several working girls, believed to have lost their lives in the fire that destroyed a five-story manufacturing building in Brooklyn, was being made in the ruins today. One man who jumped from the fifth floor was killed and eight others were injured. Twelve girls, it was said, were trapped on the top floor. Some were accounted for.

The King Sends for Him. History and Christianity. M. Candace Objects. Child Danced, Mother Stole

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, by Star Company.

"The Italian King sends for Mussolini."

He is the leader of the "Fascisti," that are now making bonfires of Socialistic newspapers, threatening everybody that calls himself Socialist or Communist. A while ago Mussolini led the Socialists. Now he is leading a movement that really succeeds—for the present.

King Victor sends for Mussolini, practical dictator of Italy, and real head of the Italian government.

It carries you back to days when the Roman emperor suddenly learned that by decision of the army, he was no longer emperor. This time it is a self-established army, representing conservatism, determined to stamp out radicalism. It considers King Victor Emmanuel a pretty good King, and will probably keep him on.

For the first time in all history, behold a successful revolution, not from the top or bottom, but in among the little people of the middle that have something and don't mean to lose it.

A lady writes from Manawan, N. J.: "Please write what you think of the assertion by the Rev. Dr. McConnell that 'Christ was a myth.'" Answer: The reverend gentleman, in backing up, backs up TOO FAR.

He might as well call Lincoln or Washington a myth. Christ's existence is sufficiently proved historically, apart from faith. But Christians require no proof. They see the work done and know that no "myth" could work thus through nineteen hundred years. There is reality back of everything real.

Monsieur Candace, of the French Chamber, protests against the sale of United States bonds in France. "Each one to his taste," the French say. You would think, after buying billions of Russian bonds, worth now about as much as our Confederate money, that the French would be glad of an opportunity to buy a bond that can be exchanged for real francs.

Stores complain that mothers use children to help the mothers in stealing. A little child does something to attract attention while the article is "lifted."

Among birds the mother protects her children by pretending that she has a broken leg; or wing, running, screaming and apparently helpless, along the ground to attract the fox or coyote, while the young birds seek shelter. Human mothers seem to have improved on that. In one case the child in a store did an impromptu "Highland Fling," while the mother stole some hats. Making a living in civilization has become complicated.

Mr. Morley, compelled to be humorous every day, has written something too good for private circulation. He describes a meeting of "front page alumni," gentlemen like Dr. Cook and Nicky

Grafton Police Chief Held as 'Slaver'

OFFICIAL AND GIRLS SEIZED

Police Head and Friends Are Caught After Auto Chase Near Canadian Border

Newport, Vt., Oct. 31.—Arrested after a thrilling auto chase along the international border, Chief of Police J. Edmund Goulet of Grafton, Mass., is being held here with another man and two young women, charged with violating the white slave act and transporting liquor illegally.

The man who is being held with him gave his name as E. J. Aucoin. He claimed to own a large gasoline filling station in Grafton. One of the girls is known as "Miss Hurd." The name of the other was not announced.

Forty-two quarts of high-grade liquor were found in the car in which the chief and his friends were riding. The local officials claim that this liquor was smuggled in from Canada.

AROUSED SUSPICION.

The arrests were made at Colebrook, N. H., just a short distance from the Canadian line.

United States Marshal Roy Skinner, on duty here, was responsible for the arrests. He saw the Massachusetts car go tearing through the town, and noticing evidences of wild hilarity on the part of its occupants, decided to investigate. With customs officials, he took another auto and started in pursuit.

Mile after mile the two cars sped over the country road. Chief Goulet's car maintained its high speed, although its occupants apparently did not realize they were being pursued.

Skinner hung on their trail doggedly, however, and finally overtook and passed them near Colebrook.

He then swung his car partially across the road, compelling the chief to stop his machine. When Chief Goulet and Aucoin got out, Skinner and his aides searched the car. Seizing the liquor as evidence, they brought the entire party back to Newport.

On arrival in Newport, the four motorists were locked up in the U. S. Customs House. Aucoin and his woman companion were able to furnish the $3,000 bail required, and were released. Chief Goulet could not follow suit, however, and he and his companion are, as a result, still lodged behind the bars here.

The chief sent telegrams to a number of business men in Grafton, requesting bail money, but all of his asking for bail money, but all of his

BIG VAUDEVILLE SUIT IS DISMISSED

New York, Oct. 31.—Federal Judge Mack today dismissed a $5,250,000 damage suit filed by Max Hart, vaudeville manager, against B. F. Keith's Vaudeville Exchange and others. The defendants were charged by Hart with attempting to stifle competition by depriving him of the privilege of booking first-class acts. Judge Mack also dismissed an injunction obtained by Hart under provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law.

VALERA MEN WARN DUBLIN NEWSPAPERS

Dublin, Oct. 31 (By the Associated Press).—The followers of Eamon De Valera in the new phase of their activity against the Free State government have warned the Dublin newspapers to disregard the censorship regulations and describe the De Valerites as "Republicans" instead of "Irregulars," and to avoid the use of quotation marks in referring to the military ranks of their officers. The warning says a penalty of $5 will be imposed for each offense.

Bride in Tangle

MRS. ANNIE B. HARRINGTON.

Hudson bride of auto salesman, whose first wife declares she never knew he had divorced her. A legal battle to clear the matrimonial tangle is promised.

WIFE DEMANDS DIVORCE BE PROBED

South Sudbury, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Lansford M. Harrington is planning legal inquiry into the divorce obtained by her former husband, who has just been married to Miss Annie M. Brandie of Hudson.

The first Mrs. Harrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Jones of this town, received news of the divorce obtained by her husband when a neighbor told her that Harrington had asked this neighbor to give the information. Up to that time she says she had no inkling that her husband had secured a divorce, let alone having a second wife.

Records at Hartford, Ct., show that Harrington, an automobile salesman, and Miss Brandie were married at Hartford, September 26, by Frank M. Mather, justice of the peace.

Harrington says that, although he obtained divorce, he is still keeping payments that the court ordered him to make to his wife after she charged him with neglect.

But the first Mrs. Harrington is said to have declared that these payments recently ceased and that she was thinking of going to court about it at the very time Harrington sent word to her of his divorce and re-marriage.

CLOSE VOTE ON MILL STRIKE

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 31.—Seventeen out of twenty-two local textile unions completed balloting this noon on the peace terms submitted by Right Rev. George Albert Guertin, D. D., Bishop of Manchester, which would settle the textile strike in progress here for thirty-nine weeks.

Reports from the polling places indicate that the vote will be close, but in favor of accepting the compromise offer of a fifty-one-hour week and no discrimination.

The polls close at 9 o'clock tonight and tabulating the vote starts at once with the results available by midnight. A committee will count and announce the vote to Bishop Guertin tomorrow.

FIRE DESTROYS CAPE BRETON STEAMER

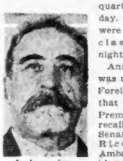
Halifax, N. S., Oct. 31.—The British steamer Marion, which operates on Cape Breton coast, was burned to the water's edge at Whycocomagh, C. B., early today. The captain and crew barely escaped. The vessel was built in New York in 1878.

14 KILLED IN ROME RIOTS

Mussolini and His Cabinet Are Sworn in; Ricci to Be Recalled From U. S.

Rome, Oct. 31 (By International News Service).—Eight persons were reported killed and several wounded in a clash between Fascisti and Communist snipers.

It occurred in the Siburtino quarter early today. Six others were slain in clashes last night.



Ambassador Ricci.

Announcement was made at the Foreign Office that the new Premier would recall at once Senator Roland Ricci, Italian Ambassador to the United States.

Ambassador Ricci has been in Italy on a vacation for six months. Rumors that he was to be deprived of his post had been denied by the Foreign Office.

The new Cabinet sworn in this morning includes four members of the Fascisti (holding six of the most important portfolios), one Nationalist, one Conservative, two Democrats and two members of the popular or populist party. Three members are Senators.

MEMBERS OF CABINET.

It is probable that Premier Mussolini will offer the foreign ministership to Count Sforza, former holder of this office, or to Signor Demartino, Italian Ambassador to London.

In addition to Mussolini other Cabinet members are: Colonies, Federzoni; justice, Ovigio; finance, Destefani; treasury, Tangorra; war, General Diaz; navy, Admiral Diheval; education, Gentle; public works, Carnazza; industry, Rossi; labor, Cavazzoni; posts and telegraphs, dicesaro; pensions, Devecchi; agriculture, Decapitani.

Sixty thousand members of the Fascisti ("Black Shirts") made a demonstration of power. They marched before the quirinal with shouts of "Long live the King."

Afterwards there was a similar demonstration before the tomb of Italy's unknown soldier.

FASCISTI TO DISBAND.

Then the leaders ordered demobilization of the Fascisti.

The Industrial Federation has pledged its support to the Mussolini Cabinet.

In an exclusive statement to International News Service, Premier Mussolini said he would maintain a friendly policy towards the allies and would not undertake "foreign adventure."

"My hope is finally to give discipline to Italy," he declared.

Count Sforza Resigns as Ambassador to Paris

Paris, Oct. 31 (By the Associated Press).—Count Sforza has telegraphed his resignation as Italian Ambassador at Paris to Premier Mussolini, saying:

"I express for the new government the most cordial good wishes. But in a foreign policy which is really a policy and not simply a group of likes and dislikes everything is interdependent, and men who on all subjects are in accord with the ideas of the new government should occupy these most delicate posts.

"With sadness at relinquishing here a work that I know to be fruitful and which I am confident will be continued, but convinced of the necessity of taking this action, I send you my resignation as ambassador to France. I am ready to leave immediately or to await the new ambassador, if his majesty's government so prefers."

GETTIGAN SOBS ON STAND

Accused Slayer Weeps as He Tells How He Watched at Aunt's Deathbed

The iron nerve that carried J. Thomas Gettigan through one murder trial today collapsed and the witness exhibited his first sign of weakness when he cried on the witness stand.

The accused, undergoing his second trial for the alleged murder of his aunt, Mrs. Lizzie M. Cook, by arsenical poisoning, gave way to his emotions as he was describing how he stood by her side and watched her die.

Gettigan was questioned at length as to who was present when Mrs. Cook died and especially as to how he had counted her pulse and then held a mirror to her mouth to determine whether life had departed.

Witness previously had denied plotting to kill an uncle, Clinton Richardson, as charged by John McDonald, a detective, and a man named Lindsey, an African dodger, once employed by Richardson.

The accused also declared he had never questioned his aunt, Mrs. Cassie Richardson, as to how much money Mrs. Cook possessed, and asserted that on one occasion he had placed $10 in Mrs. Cook's pocketbook, believing her to be short of funds.

CHILDREN OF FIRST MARRIAGE GET $5

North Adams, Oct. 31.—The will of Edmond Vadnais, for over half a century a business man in this city, has been filed for probate. He left over $200,000, it is understood. To five children of his second marriage he leaves the bulk of his estate. His widow gets one-third. Four children of his first marriage get $5 each. He names three sons, Norman, Lawrence and Valmore as his successors in the automobile firm of E. Vadnais & Son and requests that they continue the business.

Killed by Auto Truck

North Adams, Oct. 31.—Rollin Duval, eighteen years old, of South Williamstown, was fatally injured today, when he fell under an auto truck on the new Ashford highway. He was employed in the road construction gang.

LODGE SPENDS $3,870; FRANCE $43,765

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Economy laid heavily on aspirants to seats in the United States Senate during the campaign, according to expenditure returns filed today by fourteen candidates with the Secretary of the Senate.

An exception was Senator Joseph I. France, Republican, of Maryland. He established a 1922 high record for expenditures by reporting an outlay of $43,765.87. This sum includes expenses in both the primary and general elections.

The low mark was established by Earle B. Mayfield, Senatorial candidate in Texas, who reported spending $10 for postage and $5.50 for stationery.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican, of Massachusetts, spent $3,870 and listed "No contributions." Senator Atlee Pomerene, Democrat, of Ohio, received $1,895, and spent $3,104.52.

HURT IN FRIEND'S CAR, LOSES DAMAGE SUIT

Salvatore Andosca of Hopkinton lost his $5,000 damage suit against John Piscopo of East Boston in the federal district court today without the defense putting in any evidence. On September 26, 1921, Andosca was riding in an automobile owned by Piscopo, he alleged, but driven by Manfred Valdafaro, guest of Piscopo. The machine was stopped suddenly, Andosca testified, so that he was thrown out. One of his legs was broken. He sued Piscopo as owner of the car. Judge Peters directed the jury to bring in a verdict for the defence without leaving their seats.

DEMANDS MILLION HEART BALM

Courtroom Crowded at Trial of Suit of Mrs. Woodhouse in Vermont

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 31.—The S. R. O. sign, had one been available, might well have been hung out today in the Chittenden County Court, when trial began of Mrs. Dorrit Van Deusen Stevens Woodhouse's million-dollar alienation suit against her parents-in-law, Lorenzo E. and Mary Woodhouse.

The amount of damages sought is larger than ever before in this State in a case of this kind.

Many women prominent in the social life of this city, as well as farmers and their wives from the neighboring towns, crowded the courtroom to hear the celebrated case, which has been pending a year.

Judge Sherman R. Moulton is presiding, assisted by Associate Judges C. A. Barber of Burlington and C. H. Hayden of Riverside. C. H. Darling, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Guy N. Paige are counsel for Mrs. Mary Kennedy Woodhouse, the mother-in-law; United States Commissioner J. J. Enright and United States District Attorney V. A. Bullard are attorneys for the father-in-law, Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, who is president of the Merchants' National Bank of Burlington. The plaintiff's lawyer is Warren R. Austin.

OUTLINES WIFE'S CASE.

In his declaration at the opening of the case, Attorney Austin summed up the facts upon which the claim for $1,000,000 is based. He told of the brilliant marriage of his client to Charles Douglas Woodhouse on September 19, 1918. From then until the following February the couple lived happily together. Then the in-laws appeared, he charged, to blast the romance. They induced the husband to leave his wife and, to accompany them on a trip to Florida. She was left, he said, with no money or resources of any sort with which to support herself.

Young Woodhouse, Austin said, had been brought up by his wealthy parents in a manner that made him almost totally dependent upon them. He had always been given an extravagant allowance.

ALIENATION CHARGED.

His parents began a systematic campaign of poisoning the mind of their son against his wife, and threatened to cut off his allowance, Attorney Austin said, if he did not give her up. They attempted to induce him to go to another State, one in which it would be an easy matter to arrange for a divorce. Failing in this, they tried to get him to go abroad, Austin said.

Austin further charged that Woodhouse's parents prevailed upon him to take an interest in Mrs. Lillian Hendrick McClelland, a divorcee of Washington, D. C., who was matron of honor at the wedding of the plaintiff's brother-in-law in Washington. Young Woodhouse was promised a large sum of money, the attorney charged, if he would carry out the wishes of his parents concerning his matrimonial destiny.

By these methods, Austin said, the young husband's love for his wife cooled and was finally destroyed. She was deprived of his protection and support. She suffered mental and physical injury sufficient to warrant the million-dollar suit.

MARRIED? YES? CANNOT TEACH IN SOMERVILLE

Married women, as school teachers, are not favored by the School Committee of Somerville. Not while there are unmarried teachers seeking positions.

This was the stand taken by the committee in rejecting the candidacies of four married women, as permanent teachers.

At the meeting of the School Board the names of Mrs. Dellway Ellsworth, temporary teacher at the Northern Junior High; Mrs. Sarah K. L. Lake, temporary teacher at the Morse School, and Mrs. Katherine D. Millen of the Clarke Bennett School, were presented for permanent positions by the teachers' committee of the board.

In addition, the name of Mrs. Myrtle Irwin Martin, a day teacher, was recommended for appointment in the evening school. They were all rejected because they were married.

A long debate preceded the vote. One member of the board ventured the information that one of the married teachers was married to a doctor and another to an instructor at Tufts.

The matter was finally sent back to the teachers' committee. The superintendent of schools has the authority to retain married teachers at his own descretion and this course will be followed for the present, at least.

GIRL BEATEN, KEPT IN BASEMENT TWO YEARS

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Half starved and nearly blind, her body covered with bruises, Mary Devine, nineteen-year-old Bohemian girl, told the police today of daily beatings she said she received from her mother during two years' imprisonment in the basement of their home. The mother, Mrs. Josephine Devine, forty-seven, was arrested.

were trying to take her picture against her wishes, Mrs. Jane Gibson, woman farmer, and eye-witness of the double murder of Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. James Mills, the choir singer, fired upon them with a shotgun today.

Although she knelt and took careful aim, she failed to hit any of the photographers.

A motor car containing a group of "hard boiled picture takers" drove up to the Gibson farmhouse in the morning. Mrs. Gibson motioned to them to go away. They failed to do so.

Mrs. Gibson then stepped from the house with a shotgun in her hands. Again she motioned to the photographers to go away. Instead of complying they started to get out of the motor car. It was then that Mrs. Gibson fired.

The man at the wheel, without waiting for orders, "stepped on the gas" and the car disappeared in a cloud of dust.

DELAY QUESTIONED.

Throughout New Brunswick complaint was voiced against the continued delay by the authorities despite the r positive declarations that "the case is solved and it is now time to act."

The common expression voiced was that "they are stalling until after election, trying to give the impression that they have solved the case so that they may regain the votes lost by the bungling and inactivity of Prosecutors Stricker and Beelo man."

Husband Alive, Mrs. Gibson Now Admits

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 31.—Mrs. Jane Gibson, eye-witness to the Hall-Mills murder, today admitted that she had a husband living and that she was not the widow of a clergyman, dead seventeen years.

Discovery that her claims to widowhood were false had tended to cast doubt upon her entire story of the murder.

After vigorously denying that she was the wife of William H. Easton, a New Brunswick toolmaker, she admitted that she is Easton's wife.

ADMITS SHE IS MARRIED.

Mrs. Gibson, pointing to her son Will am, declared:

"I have not got a thing in God's world to hide. My boy Willie there is Easton's son and I am his mother. My first husband is dead. I had to let Easton go because he was such a hard drinker. The lies that are being told about me nowadays

Widow Gibson Pens Poem on "Duty" in Hall Case

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 31 (By International News Service).—Mrs. Jane Gibson, eye-witness of the Hall-Mills murder, today became poetic and dashed off the following poem, which she gave to a reporter:

"I stand before a multitude
To judge me as I am.
I know that I have told the truth,
And back of that I stand.
No matter what befalls me now,
My duty I must do.
I'll stick to what I know is just,
And see the whole thing through."

and with a plain purpose, but could not keep me from telling the ruth about this case."

Mrs. Gibson's son had just previously denied his mother's story of the murder and stated she was not out of their home the night the tragedy took place.

DISCARD KEY AS CLEW.

The authorities attach no importance to the finding of a safe deposit key in the grass near the spot where the bodies were discovered. The key was bright and shining, bearing no rust which showed that it had remain in the rain and dew during the ex weeks intervening since the crime.

SICK WOMAN IN CLASH WITH LANDLADY

Mrs. Fannie Cobb declared today that her sick mother, Mrs. Rose Atkins of No. 108 Blossom street, Chelsea, must not be moved out at present, landlady or no landlady.

Mrs. Cobb also said the landlady's furniture could not be moved in yet, lest her mother be disturbed by the noise.

The landlady, Mrs. Mulkin of Arlington street, Chelsea, came to the house today, Mrs. Cobb asserted, knocked on the door and demanded admission until the sick woman struggled up from bed, made three steps toward the door, then fainted.

Mrs. Cobb showed a prescription blank of Dr. H. B. Meyer of Chelsea street, Chelsea, with the following statement:

"October 31, 1922.

"This is to certify that I found this morning Mrs. Atkins in a fainting condition, this being as a result of aggravation and leaving her bed too soon. Mrs. Atkins was operated on for hernia.

"H. B. MEYER."

The Atkins and Cobb families occupy the middle apartment of the three-family house owned by Mrs. Sullkin. Two months ago they were ordered out. Mrs. Mulkin wished to occupy the premises. Mrs. Atkins saw Attorney Frank D. Crowley, secretary to Mayor Quigley, and secured a stay of two months from Chelsea Court. Then the Atkins and Cobb families found another place they could rent.

But before they were to move eight-year-old Celia Ruback on the third floor became ill with scarlet fever. The Board of Health would not let the Atkins and Cobb families move at that time and they lost the new pace they had in mind.

Meanwhile Mr. Atkins has bought a house, but the papers have not passed yet to complete his title so he can take possession.

Just as Celia Ruback was recovered and the quarantine was lifted Mrs. Atkins fell ill, was operated upon at Massachusetts General Hospital and was sent home a week ago. But she is still ill in bed.

Mrs. Cobb says the landlady refused to extend the two months' stay, which expires tomorrow. Through lawyers, agreement was reached that the tenants could have another month. But Mrs. Mulkin then insisted, Mrs. Cobb says, that she be allowed to move in her furniture today.

The final word from the landlady's side, as Mrs. Cobb told it, was that the landlady's furniture must go in or the tenants go out and that constables were coming to attend to it.

TURKS CONDEMN SEVRES SIGNERS

Constantinople, Oct. 31 (By the Associated Press).—The Turkish National at government at Angora has sentenced to death the Turkish signatories of the Sevres treaty and members of the cabinet of Former Premier Damad Ferid Pasha, whom it accuses of being Anglophile.

Hadi Pasha, who, with Riza Tewfik Bey signed the treaty, has left Constantinople for Switzerland, which is also the refuge of Damad Ferid Pasha.

None of the Turkish signers of the Sevres treaty is now within the jurisdiction of the Angora government. The treaty was the first with the Allies, and by it the Nationalists' claims were ignored. Thrace and parts of Asia Minor being given to Greece. This part is to be supplanted by the new treaty to be negotiated at the coming conference in Lausanne.

HALF OF AUTO HEADLIGHTS ILLEGAL

Fifty per cent. of all the automobiles on the road are equipped with illegal headlights, say highway inspectors after examination of more than 1,000 machines in Cambridge recently.

This surprisingly large number of violations is due in part to ignorance and in part to lack of standardization of light laws in this and other New England States. This is expected to come about shortly. Makers of headlights are, in most instances, focusing their lights according to the provisions of the statute.

Highway inspectors are expecting many violations when the new tail-light law becomes effective. This provides a light of sufficient candle power which must be carried to show the numbers a distance of 60 feet.

The idea advanced was that British charges against Fred C. Slater, who was Consul at Newcastle, of alleged discrimination against British shipping, would be withdrawn, and that the United States would make concessions by appointing other Consular officials to replace Slater and Vice-Consul Russell M. Brooks.

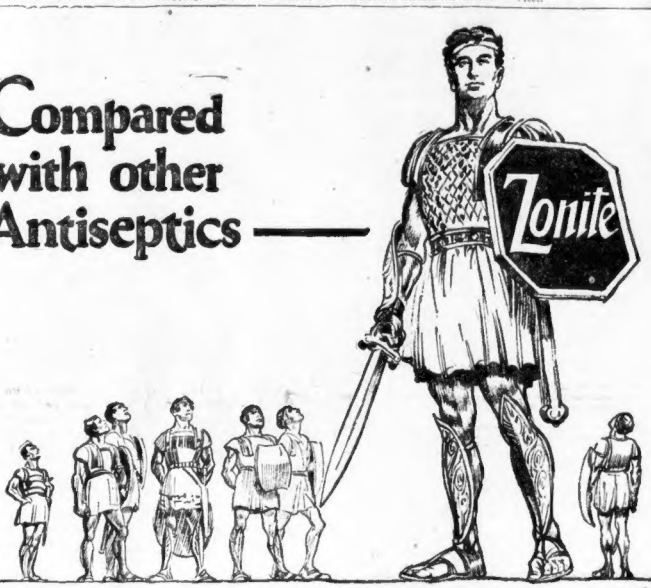
Compared with other Antiseptics—



Zonite is a Giant!

If you were about to enter a fight, which would you rather have aid you—a weak ineffective pigmy or a powerful, robust giant?

"The giant of course," you say. "But I don't expect to get into a fight."

Don't you? You are already in it. You are fighting countless billions of unseen deadly enemies who will never let up in their attack as long as your life shall last. The enemies are germs—the germs of typhoid, scarlet fever, smallpox, pneumonia, blood poisoning and a host of other diseases including pyorrhea, sore throat and colds. The only medical weapons that have been given you with which to defend yourself are antiseptics.

Let us compare Zonite with other antiseptics under approved laboratory tests:

Zonite is more than twice as powerful as pure carbolic acid.

Zonite is more than forty times as efficient as any solution of carbolic acid, bichloride of mercury, iodine, nitrate of silver and like poisons that can be applied, with safety, to the human body.

Zonite is from forty to one hundred times as powerful as peroxide of hydrogen and the other pleasant-tasting "mild antiseptics" in use heretofore.

A Friendly Giant

Yes, Zonite, the perfected form of the Carrel-Dakin solution, the great World War antiseptic, is a giant. But best of all it is a safe, a friendly giant. It will not harm the most delicate skin or membrane. It will not cause a frightful calamity if taken by mistake; for this form of antiseptic is the only real germ destroyer on earth that is both healing and non-poisonous!

Facts About Zonite

On account of its great germicidal power, extraordinary healing properties and non-poisonous character, Zonite has a hundred uses in the home.

When applied to a fresh cut or wound it destroys the germs which cause blood poison, gangrene, festering sores and other similar forms of infection. It then heals the wound in from one-third to one-half of the time ordinarily required, and with little or none of the usual pain or inflammation.

Used as a mouth wash, Zonite effectively destroys the germs which cause pyorrhea.

Used as a gargle or spray, it destroys the germs which cause many respiratory diseases.

Zonite is prompt in action, absolutely sure, safe and reliable. It rids the home of poisons.

Startling Good News for Phonograph Owners!

Columbia discovers a process which produces records free from objectionable Surface Noise!

AS a phonograph owner you have always been annoyed by the swish and grinding and scratching noises of records. This "surface noise" has been considered impossible to remove. After years of experiment, the Columbia Graphophone Company to-day presents to the world a record that is virtually noiseless.

This record has been made possible by the discovery, in Columbia laboratories, of a process by which we are able to produce a surface material so fine in texture, so marvelously smooth, so free from friction that the phonograph needle travels over it almost inaudibly and with imperceptible wear.

The playing-result from the use of this new material is actually astounding —no other word can describe it. Melody unmarred by penetrating, obtrusive surface sounds, harmony without disconcerting scratch or scrape—think what this means to you and to every phonograph owner in the world.

This is made practical by Columbia's patented laminated, or three-ply, construction. The core or centre leaf in Columbia New Process Records, because it is absolutely distinct from the playing surfaces, is made of a harder, more durable substance. Over this rigid backbone are laid the two playing faces made of the new, ultra fine, ultra smooth surface fabric.

This laminated construction gives greatly increased strength and longevity, plus the most noiseless surface ever perfected.

ROSA PONSELLE is perhaps the most dazzling meteor in the history of grand opera. Here has been called the "voice of voices." Ponselle makes records exclusively for Columbia.

This illustrates the laminated construction of the new process Columbia Records.

A—illustrates the much smoother playing surfaces which are made of a new substance over which the needle travels almost inaudibly.

B—illustrates the much harder centre core which resists warping.

The invention of this new process record by the Columbia Graphophone Co.—for it is the genius-creation of Columbia engineers and chemists—marks the greatest outstanding improvement since the invention of the universally used disc record.

With New Process Columbia Records you get all the real beauty of voice; all the exquisite, delicate tones of the cello and the violin! You get melody uncontaminated by objectionable surface noise that has been considered impossible to remove UNTIL COLUMBIA REMOVED IT!

So great is our confidence in the enjoyment New Process Columbia Records provide that we ask you to tear out the list of records in this advertisement, take it to a Columbia Dealer and have him play them! Possibly he can play the same selections by other makers! Each comparison test will be a greater Columbia triumph!

You will be thrilled by the Columbia reproduction of every note, every inflection; of the most delicate phrasing—shades of harmony exquisitely expressed that have previously been LOST IN SURFACE NOISES!

In comparison with ordinary records, as made by other manufacturers, New Process Columbia Records will prove immediately preferable.

THE METROPOLITAN Opera House Orchestra, of New York, makes records for Columbia.

TO HEAR Pablo Casals is to know born in one an utterly new conception of the magnificence and beauty of the violoncello in the hands of a master. Casals makes records exclusively for Columbia.

No other record can be like New Process Columbia Records. No one can produce anything even resembling them, for they are fully protected by broad basic patents.

In no other record can you get the same wonderful degree of surface quietness and pure, uninterrupted music, for the simple reason that Columbia alone possesses the secret of making a material which, employed as a surface for phonograph records, obliterates obnoxious and intrusive surface sounds.

This new substance does not hush loud surface noises. They are never created. Surface noise is merely friction, the point of the needle grinding on microscopic roughness and multiplied by the sensitive reproducer. In New Process Columbia Records this microscopic roughness is refined away till friction is almost a fiction.

With new and unbelievably quiet playing surfaces, the dream of making the phonograph a musical instrument of the highest and purest type has become a reality! Columbia's new surface discovery has solved the whole question! Reproduction of music has now entered a new and greater phase! To-day, the phonograph with the New Process Columbia Records is a masterful triumph. You can now buy Columbia New Process Records from any Columbia Dealer.

Go hear these Columbia Records! Take this list with you! Note the smoothness and fullness of Columbia tone! Note the beauty of expression! Note the seeming presence of the actual voice or instrument! GO hear these records to-day.

"ZIG-ZAG" AT MAJESTIC IS CLEVER

"Zig-Zag," the unit musicomedy which heads this week's bill at the Majestic Shubert Vaudeville, lives up to its name. There's enough talent in it to fit a full-sized Broadway revue. Harry Welsh and Jamie Coughlin are featured, with Claghorne Crawford, Pattie Moore and Marry Peterson underlined for the honors of the revue.

Yellen and Ager, well-known song writers, are responsible for the catchy tunes in the show, and a group of girls designated as "a first-run feature chorus" dress up the show in excellent shape.

The vaudeville contains such excellent names as Ames & Winthrop, who really present a little revue of their own, and it is a standard and amusing act.

Max & Moritz, the "Hairy Apes" disproved Mr. Bryan's contention that we are not descended from the monks. These humanized chimpanzees show a lot more gray matter than a lot of humans we could mention, but won't. Harry Mayon and Jack Kraft kidded and sang ditties of the day. Others on the vaudeville section of the bill were Ben Hadley's models and Alice Lawlor.

The revue was presented by Arthur Pearson and staged by Larry Cebellos.

Nance O'Neil at Plymouth

Nane O'Neil, one of the most popular dramatic stars who visits Boston, and whose success in "The Passion Flower" was one of the bright spots of last season, appeared at the Plymouth last night in a new play from the Spanish called "Fields of Ermine," by Benevente, author of "Passion Flower." There was a large audience and much enthusiasm. The piece will be reviewed in Wednesday's American in detail.

How I Provide Against Coughs and Colds

BY A MOTHER

"Last winter I resolved to provide in advance for the season's colds and coughs—and I did it. I spent less money and I had no doctor bills. I suffered no dread, no anxiety; I had no sleepless, worried vigils—watching my children through the dangerous periods of a bad cold. I want other mothers to know how I did it—my gratitude will then be theirs.

"I bought of my druggist a bottle of Essence Mentho-Laxene and mixed it into a pint with homemade syrup. It's very tasty, and—three minutes, a little sugar and hot water, that's all. Just follow plain easy directions. The very first dose brings relief and I have not had a serious cold or cough in my family since I adopted this pure good medicine. It contains no chloroform, or narcotics whatever. It's delicious and children don't fight it. I give it to my baby, my two older children and both my husband and self have found it supremely good in every way. It destroys the cold, stops the cough, corrects catarrhal trouble and prevents the dangerous after effects of a cold, because it is antiseptic, mildly laxative and tonic to the system.

"The manufacturers guarantee every bottle satisfactory or money back."

Essence Mentho-Laxene sold by leading druggists, price 75c, or direct by mail. "Best ever sold for rough and cold."

DORIS KEANE IN RUSSIAN PLAY AT HOLLIS

By FRED. J. McISAAC.
Dramatic Editor.

Doris Keane in "The Czarina" began an engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre last evening. This play is an European importation based upon the character of Catherine Second of Russia, a woman whom history has recorded as being a great sovereign and a dissolute person.

Miss Keane is an American actress whose great success was achieved in London in "Romance," a play which ran for several years in the British capital. "The Czarina" had a successful engagement in New York last season.

PLAY FARCICAL.

The play is rather satirical and farcical. It makes no effort to gild the habits of the Russian Empress, but rather to show how the astute Prince Soltikoff, the chancellor, ruled Russia by supplying the royal lady with masculine entertainment.

Doris Keane is a beautiful woman, striking in appearance and skillful in posture. Her Russian costumes, of which she has many, were all exceedingly picturesque and nearly all becoming. Her general uniform was not set her off much.

If she is a great actress she certainly does not show it in "The Czarina." Her voice is thin and nasal, and her diction indifferent. Her Catherine is a feline creature, usually kitten, but occasionally cat. In the big scene of the second act, where emotional powers were evidently expected by the authors, she failed to impress, but some of the softer moments were prettily done.

CAST INADEQUATE.

The thin talent of Miss Keane might not have been so noticeable if she had enjoyed adequate support, but in Louis Calhern she had the most grotesque leading man I have seen in a first-class company for a long time. He could not act, and he couldn't even walk. To imagine him creating a passion in an Empress is asking too much of the imagination.

Paul Leyssac as the French ambassador, the second lover, was very little better. Henry Mostayer as the Chancellor, whose dry humor supplied nearly all the laughter of the piece deserves credit for putting over a very talkative role effectively. William Balfour as a saturnine conspirator, was capital.

ACTOR DOG RUNS OFF WITH VAMPS

New York, Oct. 31.—Billy, famous water spaniel who acted with Margaret Wycherly in Jane Clegg, has succumbed to the lures of the bobbed-tailed, four-legged vamps who hang out in the park on Washington square.

Miss Wycherly is frantic about Billy's absence. Cops all along the old Indian path, now known as Broadway, are looking for Billy and a reward for his return.

Other Theatres

STATE THEATRE — "To Have and To Hold," a picturization of the beautiful and romantic story by Mary Johnston, was the pleasing feature at Loew's State Theatre yesterday. The scenes of this remarkable picture are laid in England in the early days of James I. and in Virginia soon after its settlement in the seventeenth century. The story deals with the adventurous love of a hardy settler for a ward of King James, who escaped to Virginia in order to avoid marriage to a nobleman of savory habits. The fight to return his bride produces a swiftness of action which is marvelous.

MODERN AND BEACON — Irene Castle, in a picturing of Charles K. Harris' modern comedy drama, "Slim Shoulders," and Dorothy Gish in "The Country Flapper," adapted from a humorous story by Nalbro Bartley, form a bill of contrasty nature which is a decidedly happy combination and marks the program at the Modern and Beacon Theatres this week as one of the most satisfying of the season.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—Rex Ingram's stupendous picture, "The Prisoner of Zenda," proved itself most popular at Loew's Orpheum Theatre yesterday, judging by the tremendous applause that the picture provoked from capacity audiences.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—Dorothy Phillips, whose absence from the screen for some months has been noted with regret by her admirers, has returned under auspicious circumstances. She is the star of "Hurricane's Gal," a First National attraction, produced by Allan Holubar which was shown at Gordon's Olympia yesterday.

SCOLLAY SQ. OLYMPIA—"Burning Sands," a desert story of marked appeal and dramatic power, proved attractive to the audience of Gordon's Scollay Sq. Olympia yesterday. The story deals with the love of a young English woman for a hermit of the Sahara desert. She persists in her effort to win him. After highly dramatic incidents of romance and tragedy, she succeeds.

GORDON'S STRAND AND CENTRAL SQ.—Proving itself to be one of the most remarkable pictures of the year "The Old Homestead" drew immense crowds to the Gordon's Strand and Central Sq. Theatres on its presentation yesterday.

WALDRON'S CASINO—With Nat (Chic) Haines, a bevy of chorus girls, hair-raising chariot races and a score of other winning features the burlesque revue, "Hello Good Times," which opened at Waldron's Casino yesterday is a show you don't want to miss. The big three-in-one continuous program is completed with vaudeville and two thrilling films and "Two-Fisted Jim" and "The Reformer."

GAYETY THEATRE—Slide, Billy, slide! That is the word at the Gayety Theatre this week for "Sliding Billy" Watson and his "Big Fun Show" are on the boards. The jolly comedian leads a company of talented principals and mighty pretty chorus girls. They present a revue which is a burlesque of "movies" in the making. Watson led the fun and was ably assisted by Bennie Howard Platt in the comedy scenes. With Joe Marine, Watson enacted a serio-burlesque skit on trench warfare that was a clever blend of pathos and comedy.

BOSTON THEATRE.— William Farnum, in "Without Compromise," is playing at the Boston Theatre, a powerful story of men who have the courage to do what is right under any circumstances. Plenty of thrilling situations with a thread of romance make it a delightful picture to see. The vaudeville is exceptionally good. A new comedy and news reels complete the program.

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS — A large and enthusiastic audience greeted the Somerville Players' production of "Miss Lulu Bett." There was no performance in the evening and no performance will be given tonight as the house has been taken over by one of the citys organizations. "Miss Lulu Bett" is a three-act comedy and tells the story of a woman who, through adverse circumstances, becomes the household drudge in the home of her married sister. The work of Ann Hamilton, as the slave, could hardly be improved upon, while Harry Bond showed his exceptional ability by the portrayal of his difficult role. Others who deserve praise are Mrs. George A. Hibbard, Joseph Granby, Halbert Brown and Peggy Shanor.

GLOBE THEATRE—That the popularity of David Wark Griffith's greatest masterpiece, "Orphans of the Storm," has not diminished was evidenced yesterday by the tremendous audiences which attended its showing at the Globe Theatre at every performance.

COUNCIL TO FIGHT TICKET SPECULATOR

War has been declared against theatre ticket speculators by the Boston City Council. In cases of prosecution a theatre management supplying seats with tickets will suffer. The council has adopted a resolution introduced by Councillor James T. Moriarity requesting Mayor Curley to revoke licenses of theatres and other amusement places that permit speculators on their premises or in cases where collusion between the scalper and management can be proved.

HOLIDAYS CUT COAL OUTPUT 1,250,000 TONS

New York, Oct. 31.—Five holidays which miners will celebrate next month will mean a loss of 1,250,000 tons in production, according to an announcement made by William H. Woodin, State fuel administrator.

The holidays referred to are All Saints' day, All Souls' day, election day, Armistice day and Thanksgiving.

In these days of a coal shortage these holidays should not be observed in the mines, Mr. Woodin said.

PIANO RECITAL GIVEN BY MISS BACON

Yesterday afternoon at Jordan Hall, Katherine Bacon gave a pianoforte recital. Not as many people were there as should have been, but it is only fair to state that all those who were there will be present when she gives her next recital in Boston —and a few more as well.

Times are changing—it is not too long ago to remember when a young pianist would not have dared present a piano program without the name of Beethoven appearing somewhere. Nowadays, they play what they please and pass up the customs of old with a faint bow.

Miss Bacon is an interesting personality and an interesting musician. She went through her program in a clear, brisk way that was something of a joy in itself as compared to other recitals which have been dragged out needlessly. Her touch is delightfully warm and sympathetic, but there is an astonishing amount of power when there is need for it. Technical equipment was splendid.

The program included Bach-Liszt, Chopin, Schubert-Liszt, Debussy and Saint-Saens. Of these composers, Miss Bacon seemed to have the most to say through the medium of Chopin and Schubert.

BANS MISCHIEF ON HALLOWE'EN

Harmful Hallowe'en pranks by boys throughout the city will be prosecuted vigorously by the police of all divisions under special orders issued by Superintendent Michael H. Crowley.

The superintendent says: "Tuesday, October 31st, being Hallowe'en, there will be more or less celebration by the young people of the city and will be on the streets in all sections.

"In former years, and especially last year, a great many street lamps were broken by boys throwing stones and other missiles at the lamps and in some cases streets were left in total darkness.

"The breaking of street lamps and connection lanterns is a very dangerous practice and likely to result in serious injury and possible death to persons using the streets, especially automobilists, and, of course, an expense to the city in replacing of broken lamps.

"Commanding officers will instruct all officers to have a sharp lookout for boys in groups going through the streets and to arrest and prosecute in court all boys or other persons found breaking street lamps, breaking connection lanterns, or doing any other kind of damage to property."

"Sylpho-Nathol Ends Garbage Smells"

"I used to dread to lift the lid of the garbage can. It was the only housekeeping duty I ever thoroughly disliked. And besides, Dr. Bell's lecture at our Civic Club on Home Sanitation made me realize how dangerous to family health unprotected garbage receptacles can be. He explained how germ-carrying flies breed there so rapidly.

"That's how I discovered Sylpho-Nathol, or rather, Clara Peabody discovered it for me. She had been using it for a long time in her house.

"I wouldn't think of using anything else,' she said, when I talked to her. 'We have tried so many other things. Not one of them was nearly so satisfactory. They either had a perfectly horrid smell or were poisonous, or were so bothersome to mix.'

"Sylpho-Nathol is different. It is so easy to prepare—one teaspoonful in a quart of warm water makes a clean-smelling, pesety-gray solution that is ready for immediate use.

"Sylpho-Nathol is sure — just rinse out the garbage can with the solution, sprinkle it in every day, and the flies won't come near.

"Sylpho-Nathol is safe — 4½ times stronger than carbolic acid—yet no more dangerous to have in the house than a cake of scouring soap.

"Sylpho-Nathol has so many important household uses—for mop water that destroys germs; for sprinkling in dark, musty-smelling corners; as a flush for closet bowls and for wiping around bathroom floors and fixtures—in fact wherever absolutely germ-free, odorless cleanliness is desired.

"Sylpho-Nathol is efficient, easy to use and economical. It comes in four handy sizes, 15c, 35c, 65c, $1.25. If you have never used it, phone your grocer to include a bottle in your order. Either he or your druggist can supply you. If not, he can get it easily. Ask for it by the name—Sylpho-Nathol."

Plays That Remain

SELWYN THEATRE—"Shuffle Along," the sensational Dixie hit, began the fourteenth week and incidentally the last two weeks of its Boston run at the Selwyn Theatre last night.

TREMONT THEATRE—There will be a great many theatregoers in Boston who will be doomed to disappointment in not being able to view the George M. Cohan musical show, "Little Nellie Kelly," at the Tremont Theatre, where its final fortnight began last evening.

COLONIAL THEATRE—The final fortnight of Irving Berlin's Music Box Revue began at the Colonial Theatre last evening. It is a dazzling super-spectacle with a super-abundance of supreme entertainers.

WILBUR THEATRE—There is a theory among theatre managers that if a play can run successfully for three months in Boston that it can run as well run six. "The Bat" started on its third month at the Wilbur Theatre last evening.

SHUBERT THEATRE—It is unfortunate that the management could not allot more than two weeks to such an exceptional musical comedy attraction as "The Rose of Stamboul," which started last evening in its second and last week at the Shubert Theatre.

Coming Events

SELWYN THEATRE — William Anthony McGuire's newest comedy, "It's a Boy," coming direct from the San H. Harris Theatre in New York, will succeed "Shuffle Along" at the Selwyn Theatre, opening its Boston engagement on Monday evening, November 13.

FINE ARTS THEATRE—The sale of seats for the engagement of "The Beggar's Opera" opened this morning at the box office of the Fine Arts Theatre in the Loew's State Theatre building on Massachusetts avenue. "The Beggar's Opera" opens a brief engagement here next Monday evening, November 6. The Boston engagement is made possible by Albert Steinert by special arrangement with J. C. Duff.

GLOBE THEATRE—"The Curse of Drink," a grippingly absorbing photoplay, presented by a quintette of screen celebrities, including Harry T. Morey, George Fawcett, Edmund Breese, Miriam Batista and Marguerite Clayton, will be shown for a two weeks' engagement at the Globe Theatre, beginning next Monday.

SHUBERT THEATRE — Next week's attraction at the Shubert Theatre will be Eddie Cantor in the New York Winter Garden's most successful revue, "Make It Snappy."

MAINE LABOR TRIES AGAIN FOR 48 HOURS

Portland, Me., Oct. 31.—Maine labor organizations are taking steps looking to the enactment by initiation of the forty-eight-hour law for women and children at the coming session of the Legislature. A similar bill was defeated in the last Legislature. Petitions are already in circulation.

KEITH BILL IS OF EXCEPTIONAL CALIBRE

If you fail to see the show at Keith's Theatre this week, then you rae missing the best show of the season so far.

What with the incomparable Belle Baker, Braggiotti Sisters, and William Halligan, you couldn't get more for your money if you tried.

The remaining acts are all star acts, and come very near being headliners. Jack Little is a syncopated Paderewski, and "took the house." Ray and Emma Dean are to be commended for their offering. The act couldn't be any funnier. "A Night on Broadway," offered by Ray Hall, Edith Ermine and Her Gang," in "Trix and Chat and Louise Brice was good, and drew a good hand.

Other good acts are Van Horn & Inez, in "Sixty Turns a Minute," W. Dornfield, late of "Klass Janis ter" and the Hartwells, sensational swingers on double swinging ropes.

Irish Band

A traveling festival of Irish music is the best description of the concert of the noted Band of the 110th Irish Regiment of Toronto, Canada, which is scheduled to appear at Symphony Hall next Sunday evening.

The project was conceived by Roger de Bruyn, New York concert manager, and official permission has been secured for the band to make the tour, which will mean the establishment of a precedent, as the organization has never before undertaken such an adventure. The band is one of the best-known musical organizations of its kind and has been frequently heard in Canada under the baton of Lieutenant J. Andrew Wiggins.

SHE DARKENED HER GRAY HAIR

Tells How She Did It With Barbo Compound

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement:

"Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger."

REPUBLICAN TOWN CHAIRMEN OPPOSED TO FILM CENSOR

BEECHAM'S PILLS
The Safest and Best Family Medicine

INDICATE VIEW OF STATE

Defeat of Bill Indicated as Prize Letter Contest Enters Final Week

The defeat of movie censorship on November 7 is seen. Concrete indication of which way the wind blows is seen in the replies received from seventy-eight town, city or county chairmen of the Republican State Committee.

Of the seventy-eight, no less than sixty-four said they were opposed to censorship and that the sentiment of their respective communities was also in opposition. Four were noncommittal.

This is by no means the entire list; merely the results as shown in the earlier replies. This shows that about 90 per cent. of the chairmen are against censorship.

This is the closing week of the Boston American Censorship Contest. A cash prize of $250 will be paid to the writer of the best letter on censorship, with $100 for second and $50 for third prize. Send in your letter at once, if you want it to be considered for a prize.

Here are some letters:

OPPOSES IDEA.

Editor Boston American:

I do not believe in moving picture censorship. The directors of these enterprises are honorable men, with a very extensive knowledge of the subjects which appeal to the great mass of theatre-goers. These men are not unscrupulous in their attitude toward the moving picture interests. Very few of them, in fact, none that I know, would put on a vicious or immoral play simply to make large sums of money by pandering to a vitiated public taste.

Clean, wholesome plays are successful. The managers know that. They have no interest in producing plays which depict life in a sordid, unnatural or vicious way. They are hard-working men.

Actors and actresses in the film world do not enjoy depicting life vulgarly. Standards of life vary in different sections of this country. "Moral conduct is just a question of geography," said a clever writer of the last century.

Public censors would not and could not agree on standards of life. Nor could we expect them to understand a world in which they had never moved. To be a successful and honest censor, one must know thoroughly all periods of history, classic literature, romantic literature, plays past and present on the legitimate stage, operatic plots, present-day books, primarily best sellers, which have been dramatized or filmed and books like "The Three Musketeers," the "Prisoner of Zenda," and the long list of historical novels.

He must have this knowledge to be a faithful censor, for to be a censor implies knowledge of the thing censored.

EDITH LYNWOOD WINN,
Room 607, Huntington Chambers, Copley square, Boston.

"DOING WELL WITHOUT."

Editor Boston American:

My argument against movie censorship is based on the belief that there has been a radical change in the style of pictures during the past half-dozen years. I am no movie fan. I attend the movies only occasionally and for that reason I think I can see better than the habitual theatre-goer that there is a change.

I mean that the general tone of the pictures is much improved. Thanks to such producers as David Wark Griffith and others, any one may go to the movies and come away not only conscious of having been highly entertained but of having been well instructed, which is a mighty good combination of feeling.

Best of all, a mother can take her young son or daughter to the movies without fear of having to camouflage explanations of this or that thing, during the show. Even a minister may attend the movies without fear of censure from his congregation.

Give us cool-censors, high-price-of-meat censors, high rent censors, but we, the great American public, can manage to exist nicely without movie censors.

MRS. HENRY M. FILMORE.
No. 11 Newton St., Brighton.

LEAVE IT TO HAYS

Editor Boston American:

In view of the wide range and great variety of subjects and situations dealt with on the screen I consider that it is second only to the press in the dissemination of news effecting the major events that are transpiring daily throughout the world.

If we are to continue to enjoy the freedom of speech, press and assemblage guaranteed by the Federal Constitution, I believe that consistency demands that the motion picture industry be accorded equal latitude.

I believe that the motion picture has within its sphere tremendous possibilities for service to the human race and the greater the opportunity for good and evil, possessed by any public institution the more reluctant the people should be to surrender their right of personal supervision.

Recently a member of the President's Cabinet, holding one of the most important portfolios under the jurisdiction of our government, resigned to become the directing head of the Motion Picture Industry, with an annual salary double that received by the President of the United States. His duty among other things, is to see that the industry is maintained in a high state of morality, and to promote in every legitimate manner the development of an institution which provides entertainment and recreation for people from every walk of life.

Having in mind all these things, and the fact that millions of dollars have been invested in the business on the basis of public good will and that millions of people are witnessing daily the various productions (passing censorship, if you please), I submit that the demand for further censorship by the State is unwarranted. And would unnecessarily burden the financial resources of a people who are at present staggering under the greatest tax load in the history of this Commonwealth.

For these reasons and many others not here enumerated I shall vote No on referendum No. 3.

MRS. J. H. REARDON.
No. 55 Downing street, Worcester.

RESUME WAGE LAW HEARING TOMORROW

The public hearing on the minimum wage law will be resumed tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in room 370 at the State House. Those opposed to the law and who seek the repeal will be given a chance to continue their arguments. Alfred E. Lunt of the Manufacturers' Industrial Protective Association, has close to a score more witnesses to present.

Sees Bigotry as Film Censorship Menace

Mrs. Albert T. Leatherbee, prominent in social welfare work and secretary of the committee of Massachusetts Citizens Opposed to Censorship, says:

"Censorship is against the fundamental principles and ideals of American government. It is nother phase of paternalism. It places the State in the attitude of saying the parents are unintelligent or incapable of selecting the education for their children. It places every citizen in the position of a child, incapable of caring for himself.

"Censorship would be bad enough if the censor were elected, but it would be infinitely worse and contrary to our ideas of government when the censor, as in this case, is to be a political appointee. The censor is to be given arbitrary power, but no standard is set up to guide him. His personal opinion would rule.

"A censor who is bigoted in either political or religious matters would work infinite harm. This bill also takes away the power from the cities and towns and vests it solely in the State."

DAVIES' FILM CONTINUES AT PARK

That romance holds ruling sway with modern theatregoers is being convincingly proved by the favor won by Marion Davies in the Cosmopolitan production, made from Charles Major's novel, "When Knighthood was in Flower," which is now in its second week at the Park Theatre.

Considerable credit for the photoplay's popularity must be given to the grand manner in which the production was made and is now being presented with perfect accompaniments.

Never before has Boston had a picture housed in such a gorgeously decorated interior, quite appropriate to the period of the play and the presence of a large orchestra to play the splendid individual music score heightens to the last degree the pleasure of witnessing it.

Marion Davies surprised those who had followed her work on the screen by her admirable impersonation of Mary Tudor, the roguish sister of bluff King Hal. The spirit of Henry the Eighth appears to live again in its admirable picturing contained in the photoplay and glorious romance weaves its intriguing way to capture all hearts through the story of Mary Tudor and Charles Brandon.

So admirably was the photoplay directed that there is a delightful infusion of humor to lighten the course of the story.

"FAMOUS MRS. FAIR" AT ST. JAMES THEATRE

"The Famous Mrs. Fair," James Forbes' greatest play, which was done last season at the Hollis Street Theatre by Henry Miller and Blanche Bates, is the bill of the Boston Stock company at the St. James this week.

This play deals with the adventures of a celebrated woman who delivered lectures all over the United States, but who was compelled to neglect her husband and children during these long absences.

The difficulties into which her husband and children tumble as a result of the long absences of the wife and mother comprise the theme of one of the most amusing plays of the generation.

The members of the Boston Stock company all distinguish themselves in the various roles and the piece goes with the vim of splendid preparation.

VOTERS VOICE OPPOSITION TO FILM CENSORS

The same body that is now fighting for movie censorship will have "a finger in the pie" if Referendum Number 3 is accepted on November 7. In other words, the nominal censor will do his work as the present "reformers" dictate. It will be a one-man dictatorship, in that one man will officially pass on the films. But the "invisible government," represented by the present advocates of censorship, will see that only pictures suitable to them, are passed.

That is but one more argument advanced against censorship of the films. Here are additional statements:

T. A. McKenna, 10 Bowker street, Brookline: "Some people have little faith in the ability of our police departments and societies, to keep moving pictures clean. Likewise, some people fail to realize that theatre managers are business men and, as such, they are not going to risk their reputations and their patronage by showing pictures that are indecent. I say, let the public do its own censoring. Any objections can then be taken directly to the theatre manager involved and the trouble settled quickly."

T. A. McKenna

Miss Catherine Fitzgerald, No. 1459 Columbus avenue, Roxbury: "Movie censorship could never be more than a farce. I have read of other States where censorship is in operation and it does not take long to see that those States are having more trouble than they expected. If censorship was really wanted, there would be a wholesale demand from the general public. But no; a small handful of agitators are making the "demand." Since when has the minority ruled in politics or any other place. Keep censorship out of politics, is my view."

Catherine Fitzgerald

John Kelly, No 25 Center street, Jamaica Plain:

"I would suggest that these alleged reformers, who are so keen looking after the welfare of the country at large, take action in some direction that will give real benefit to the masses. For, goodness knows, there are enough things that need attention. The housing shortage, the coal shortage, the cost of living and a few other items could furnish plenty of good material for the reformers to work on. But, no; they like to take the easiest course and the movies, which furnish the only entertainment in the lives of millions, and dig up some imaginary evils which they feel must be wiped out."

BETHLEHEM COMPANY BUYS $1,500,000 EAST BOSTON DRY DOCK

DEAL WILL AID PORT REVIVAL

Purchase of the Big Simpson Plant Expected to Bring Shipping to Boston

The Bethlehem Ship Building Corporation, Ltd., of New York, owner of the Fore River ship yards at Quincy, has purchased the million and a half dollar plant of the Simpson Dry Dock Corporation at Jeffries Point, East Boston.

Announcement of this important transaction was made by officials of the Simpson corporation. It gives the boom-the-port-of-Boston movement a decided impetus.

Arrangements for the passing of papers whereby the Simpson plant of three drydocks became the property of the Bethlehem corporation was made at the New York office of the latter concern. Ezra H. Baker of Boston, treasurer of the Simpson company, represented the East Boston holdings.

PLANT TAKEN OVER.

Following the transaction, S. Wiley Wakeman, general manager at the Fore River plant of the Bethlehem corporation, immediately took charge of the Simpson plant. Hereafter it will be known as the Bethlehem Ship Building Corporation, Ltd., Simpson Drydocks Plant.

Mr. Wakeman on his first visit to the East Boston plant ordered the superintendents and foremen to remain at work, and stated that no changes in the working staff were contemplated.

The Simpson drydocks were built in 1886 and the repair department started June 30, 1919. At present 50 men are employed at the plant, and when it is running at capacity 125 are employed.

PLANT CONSIDERED IDEAL.

The Simpson plant is considered by those in the know as being an ideal dry dock. The buildings are of brick and concrete construction. There is a power plant, pumping plant, property department, plate department, carpenter shop, marine shop and three dry docks.

Boston Smart Set Well Represented at Tuxedo Park Ball, Betty Alden Hears

By BETTY ALDEN.

VISITING in New York over the week-end was pretty Elizabeth Caswell—or "Sister," as she is called—who went over for the gay Autumn ball held at Tuxedo Park.

Miss Caswell, whose deep brown eyes contrast so strikingly with her light hair, stayed over for the very large tea which Colonel and Mrs. Frank Browne Keech held on Sunday afternoon at their Tuxedo home. Many of the season's most prominent debutantes were present, at the tea, among them being Miss Cornelia Livingston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Goodhue Livingston, who has a host of connections here.

Boston was further represented in the distinguished throng by Mr. and Mrs. "Alex" Tomes, the latter formerly Miss Elizabeth St. John Whiting of Boston, who made such a lovely bride at Emmanuel Church a year ago. She is a tall, slender blonde, with an exceptionally sweet face. The former Isadora Bliss of Boston, now Mrs. Amory S. Carhart, who was on the committee in charge of the ball, was there with her husband. Mrs. Richard T. Wilson (Marion Mason), another former Bostonian, attended the tea accompanied by her young daughter, Miss Marion Wilson. A few of the many others there were Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt, Mrs. Turnbull Oelrichs, Mr. and Mrs. Casimir de Rham and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Rhinelander.

MR. AND MRS. S. PARKMAN SHAW have closed their Lenox home and are returning to Boston, where their town house is at No. 134 Marlboro street.

FROM London comes the news that Miss Joan Whitney, daughter of the Payne Whitneys, has arrived there from Algiers with her cousin, Miss Barbara Whitney. They stopped at the Hotel Brighton, where they were joined by the latter's mother, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

Joan Whitney was one of the active members of the North Shore younger coterie last Summer when her parents had the Richard D. Sears place at Prides Crossing for the mid-Summer season.

A CAKEWALK and concert by negro performers on Sunday evening marked the climax of the Autumn season at Hot Springs, Va., where Mrs. Augustin Parker (Caroline Dabney) has just arrived to increase the Boston colony.

J. HIGGINSON MANNING of Marlboro street was in the jolly house party of young people whom Helen Frothingham and her brother, Samuel, Jr., entertained over the week-end at their Lenox country home.

As part of the entertainment the youthful hosts took their guests on a moonlight racoon hunt up Richmond Mountain to the fire tower on Saturday night, resulting in the capture of three coons. Others of the house party were Miss Margaret Monell, James B. Mahon, Jr., Franklin Houston, Henry S. Dugdale, all of New York, and Benjamin Theron of Washington.

MR. AND MRS. B. SUMNER WELLES (Esther Slater), who spent last Winter in Washington, I believe, are to be for the coming season in New York. They have taken the house of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Douglas Sloane at No. 12 East Sixty-second street.

AT a recent sporting event on the North Shore I heard someone remark on the marked softness of Mrs. Freddy Ayer's voice as the skilled equestrienne leaned for a moment from her mount to chat with her mother, Mrs. Charlie Rice.

So many of the horsewomen along the Shore have very deep voices, and their speech is very business-like and "crisp." However, the former Hilda Rice is quite different. She speaks in sort of a soft, drawling way, unlike that of her sister-riders.

MISS ELEANOR BATCHELDER was presented at a dinner dance which her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Batchelder, gave for her at their Medford home on Friday evening.

There are two older sisters, Dorothy and Eleanor Batchelder, both of whom, like their mother, have been ever willing charity workers since their debut.

MR. AND MRS. ROYAL ROBBINS and their daughter, Miss Theresa Robbins, and James S. Lee, all of Boston, were recently registered at the Curtis Hotel in Lenox.

PASTOR GIVES SERMON TO HIS DEATH JURY

Statesboro, Ga., Oct. 31.—The Rev. Elliott Padrick, youthful Methodist minister, on trial for the alleged murder of his wife, and her mother, Mrs. M. R. Dixon, took the stand in his own behalf today. He led the courtroom in prayer, after which he delivered a sermon on the text "Thou Shalt Not—"

In his prayer Padrick asked for divine guidance for the court, the future of the church and the people of Statesboro. He then turned to the jury and delivered a short sermon. He declared the women of today were causing the downfall of man, "enticing them by their manner of dress, and playing to them through sex appeal." He said it was difficult for a young man to enter the Gospel because of the temptation of modern women.

Singling out his father-in-law, Padrick pointed his finger at him and declared: "You are responsible for me marrying your daughter."

Padrick described the alleged jealousness of his wife's mother, whom he admitted he killed.

"She would often beat her daughter because Willie Mae was admired by other men when she went to town," he said.

Padrick has shown little interest in his trial, sleeping while much of the State's evidence was being submitted.

The defense contends the former minister was insane when he shot both his wife and mother-in-law in an automobile near here June 19.

Dublin, Oct. 31.—The whole city was shaken by the explosion of a land mine planted at the door of the headquarters of the detective branch of the national army. Seven civilians were wounded.

Within the radius of a quarter of a mile of the explosion houses were rocked and hundreds of windows were shattered.

GIRL TRIES TO KILL SELF AS LOVER BALKS

Because her sweetheart would not marry her at once, Senobia Schalk, aged 18, of No. 63 Sawyer street, Roxbury, went to the bathroom in her home and drank a quantity of disinfectant. She is now on the danger list at the City Hospital.

Early today, according to the police version of the affair, the girl went to the home of her suitor, Herbert Freeman, of No. 30 Stirling street, Roxbury. She asked him to marry her right away. They have been engaged for some time.

But Herbert wanted to wait for a while longer. Then, it is said, the girl became angry. She went back to her own home and drank the disinfectant.

Green Edition Wins Praise of Lowell Optometrist

Dr. Benjamin Cohen

EVEN from the cities and towns around Boston the optometrists have joined in praising the Boston American for its green edition.

Dr. Benjamin Cohen of No. 26 Gorham street, Lowell, is one of the recent ones to give his professional O. K. to green paper.

"The Boston American," says Dr. Cohen, "is to be commended for having started the green edition. Green, which prevails in nature, fatigues the eye least of all colors. For this reason, billiard tables are covered with green and blinds are usually green.

"The eye is best able to bear those colors which are most widely distributed in nature. Pale green is pleasant and soothing."

PHELAN CLAIMS COAL MEN ARE PROFITEERING

Anthracite coal speculators in this State are fleecing the consumers at the rate of $4.50 or $5.00 a ton, according to State Fuel Administrator James J. Phelan.

Mr. Phelan, in a statement issued after his return from a visit to Fuel Administrator W. H. Woodin of New York State, urged the people of Massachusetts to refrain from buying hard coal, if possible. The use of any substitute was urged, in order that coal profiteers might not thrive at the expense of the consumers.

Because of the shortage of cars, it will be several months before the hard coal situation in Massachusetts returns to normal, said Mr. Phelan.

The Fuel Administrator said that Pennsylvania coal was selling at the mines for $8.50 for "company" and $9.25 for "independent" coal. Yet this same coal is offered here for $13.50 a gross ton, at the mines. Adding freight charges, retailers' profit, etc., this means an eventual cost of more than $20.

GUARD SUSPECT IN POISONED CAKE CASE

Philadelphia, Oct. 31.—Authorities today were closely guarding the identity of a suspect in the mystery of the poisoned cake which caused the death of W. W. Sterrett of Devon, an expert accountant, and the serious illness of his wife. A. N. Simpson, a Postoffice Department inspector, who is taking a leading part in the investigation, inclines to the theory that jealousy was the motive for mailing the death-bearing confection.

Destroys Superfluous HAIR and ROOTS

(C) 1922

Are You Really Beautiful?

Perhaps unconsciously you have permitted tiny hairs on your lip, face or arms to grow until now they mar your good looks.

Destroy them now, before they become a subject of jest among your men and women friends.

Ordinary depilatories and shaving merely remove the surface hair, leaving the roots to thrive and often cause the hairs to grow faster and coarser. Do not confuse Zip with ordinary depilatories.

One application of Zip will be a revelation to you—a proof that Zip does actually lift out the roots with the hairs, gently, quickly and painlessly, and in this way destroys the growth. GUARANTEED.

Ladies everywhere are discarding the old, dangerous methods and are now using ZIP for destroying superfluous hair on face, under arms and body, creating the new arched brow, clearing the back of neck, bobbed hair, freeing the forearms and limbs. Avoid imitations.

Not only removes hair—but checks its future growth.

"IT'S THE FLAVOR"

Fred Anderson's DISCOVERY

It had been a tough day for Fred Anderson.

There had been a conference at 9.30 with the General Manager, an important meeting of executives at 11.00, two sales letters had been written—plans for the new building discussed, and for the last hour an almost constant ringing of the telephone.

Fred looked at his watch. "Three-twenty," he said. "And still a lot to be done—Hello! Hello!"

The telephone was ringing again. It was the General Manager.

"What's that? Go out with you and get a cup of Coffee?" repeated Fred Anderson in surprise. "Certainly. Just as soon as I get my hat."

That was the first time Fred had ever stopped his work for a few minutes in mid-afternoon to go out for a cup of Coffee. It was a good investment. He's been doing it regularly ever since.

"Greatest thing in the world for business men," he said the other day. "It lifts you up mentally and physically and gets you by the zero hour that comes in every busy day. I do more work now from 3.30 to 5.00 than I used to do all afternoon."

COFFEE
-the universal drink

After all, why not a mid-afternoon cup of Coffee? It helps you start the day right. Why not repeat on it along about three-thirty?

GIRL, 15, AND MARRIED MUSIC TEACHER, 45, IN LOVE PACT

AGREED TO DIVORCE HIS WIFE

Couple Caught in Flight to Canada After "Wedding" in Connecticut

New York, Oct. 31.—A love pact between a girl of fifteen years and a man of forty-five, a grandfather, was aired in the Westchester County Court. The man, Professor Albert Tondra of Yonkers, pleaded guilty of abduction.

The girl is Rose Beadles, of Wells avenue, Yonkers, who was his secretary. Tondra, who has a wife and three children, married the girl at Stamford, May 29. They were on their way to Canada when they were taken off the train at Albany by the police, at the request of the girl's parents.

TOLD TO BURN PAPERS.

The love pact was contained in a letter of typewritten instructions which Tondra sent to Rose when she was held at St. Germain's Home in Peekskill, as a material witness by the Westchester county Children's Society. This document was read in court.

In it Tondra cautioned the girl to testify that all was over between them, and that she was merely going to Canada with him as his assistant in his musical work.

The statement urged the girl to burn the paper immediately.

It said that of course the stated condition would not be true, as he planned for them to live together as soon as his wife divorced him, but that such testimony would help to smooth things over in court.

WIFE PLEADS FOR HIM.

The girl was asked to testify that she and Tondra were living in separate rooms and that he was paying her $10 a week.

On the trial Mrs. Tondra, who had received her husband at home after he had got bail, tried several times to kiss him. While Judge Blakley was considering the case she rose and said:

"Judge, I love him; it is unfair to make him a prisoner."

Judge Blakley said he had received several letters from persons to whom Tondra was known, to the effect that the defendant was mentally incompetent. He said he would appoint a commission to examine him as to his sanity.

TODAY

Arnstein, that have known glaring publicity and lost it. Toward the end of the meeting a member named Stillman remarks: "Publicity makes strange bed fellows," a voice at the rear: "You have it wrong; it's the other way round."

Exports of American corn have increased greatly; a good thing for Europe, learning to eat corn meal, also to use "maize" in fattening cattle.

The increased demand for corn is good for our children, threatened with a milk shortage. Profitable dairy farming depends on ensilage, and ensilage depends on the corn crop. Somebody should make better, cheaper silos so that the farmers could use it. Knocked down house builders please notice.

Professor Gibbons teaches history at Princeton and says human nature caused the war. "If it had not been Germany, it would have been some other country. Not German nature, but human nature precipitated the war."

Not long ago such a statement might have put the professor in jail. Nobody knows yet what started the war, but this is certain: Germany had the misfortune and folly to be led by an individual that took his "divine right" seriously, and took much too seriously the shooting of a not valuable Austrian heir apparent. That fixed the DATE of the war, no matter what caused it.

A colored lady "up North," charged with a minor offence, told the judge she came from a "foreign country," which turned out to be Jacksonville.

The good-natured judge, dismissing the charge, asked Mrs. Edith Jenkins whether she intended to vote. "I hadn't counted on it," was the reply, "but I will if your honor says I got to." Many women, and men, too, not all colored, are about as vague about the ballot as Mrs Jenkins from Jacksonville.

RADIO SHOW HAS MANY NEW FEATURES

That interest in radio has not died out was demonstrated at the opening in Mechanics Building of the second Boston Radio Exposition. Many novelties, never before displayed, greeted the throng.

What is called the "Packard" of radio receivers received much favorable comment. A mahogany desk of attractive appearance encloses a complete receiver, neatly encased, with a special control panel. Underneath the desk is kept the "A" and "B" batteries, together with a rectifier for charging the storage battery. A loud speaker is cleverly brought out from the desk.

The desks may be fitted with any standard set, and are built in a number of period styles. Two electric lights at either side of the controls add to the appearance and practicability of the set. In the back of the desk are posts and plugs for the antenna, ground, and lead to house current, which charges the storage battery and lights the two bulbs.

NEW MYERS HOOKUP.

A new hookup for three stages of radio and three of audio-frequency amplification, together with a detector, which has just been patented by Elman B. Myers, inventor of the tube bearing his name, attracted considerable attention. This hookup was demonstrated by Myers personally, who claimed it to be the first practicable radio frequency amplifier for short waves. Another exhibit demonstrated the practicability of four stages of audio-frequency amplification without distortion.

The values of the condensers as shown in the hookup are as follows: C-1, .006; C-2, .02; C-3, .0005; C-4, .005; C-5, .001; C-7, 2; C-8, 4; C-9, .002 mfd. The resistance (P) is one tenth megohm in each case.

ELIMINATES NOISE.

For the first time in any radio show exhibitors were allowed to demonstrate only one at a time. In other shows life has been made unbearable by the howls and squeals given off by loud-speakers due to simultaneous operation of a score or more. The new system of allowing a demonstrator from ten to fifteen minutes in which to demonstrate without competition was pronounced completely successful, and it is likely that other shows will copy the scheme.

Special lectures on radio matters will be given daily in Talbot Hall. Today starts the preliminary telegraph contest.

MOTOR BOATS MEET LIQUOR SHIPS AT SEA

Rum runners who smuggle liquor into New England from Canada and the Bahamas have two main points of entry. These points are Shark Ledge, off Block Island, and the jagged, uneven coast-line in the vicinity of Rockport.

Ships laden with liquor put out from Quebec, Halifax or Miquelon and head for Portsmouth, N. H. Outside of Portsmouth harbor they go slowly, transshipping their cargoes to motor boats. These small boats then take the liquor down to the vicinity of Rockport, where they land it in shady coves.

Coming from the Bahamas, the ships stop off Shark Ledge which is a few miles south of Block Island. Here they are met by motor boats from Providence, Newport, New Bedford and New London, which take their cargoes and land them on American shores.

A cargo of liquor valued at close to a million dollars was recently landed near Rockport, while two ships loaded with liquor stood by Shark Island for more than 24 hours, waiting openly for the small boats to come and unload them.

$37,000 WILL FIGHT CAUSED BY 3 PUPS

Chicago, Oct. 31.—A $37,000 estate bequeathed to two dogs has precipitated a canine maternity triangle.

When Mrs. Margaret Howard died last June, she set aside a part of her fortune to care for her two pet dogs, Trixie and Friskie. They were to enjoy and share the income from the $37,000 estate during their lifetime, but no provision was made for their offspring.

Recently Trixie littered three puppies, while Friskie remained "single." In the original will it was set forth that the offspring of the pets were not to share in the estate. With the death of the principals, the estate was to go without restriction to the Arkansas Children's Home at Little Rock.

A new will was presented in court today by Frank Leighton, brother-in-law of Mrs. Howard, in which the two dogs, Friskie and Trixie, were named as principal heirs, and the three small pups born to Trixie since she came into her fortune were to share.

The right of the pups' succession of the estate was denied by Henry C. Leemon, an attorney for Mrs. Howard, who filed the original will for probate.

"It never has been proved that these pups were actually Trixie's children," Mr. Leemon argued. He demanded that evidence be submitted to prove their rights through maternity or paternity proceedings if they were to share in the estate.

HOLD UP WOMAN, ROB HOUSE

James he was a policeman and that it was a painful duty to search the house. She tried to block his entrance. It was then that the thug grasped her by the shoulder and threw her against a door.

"My wife was brutally treated," said P. A. James, shipping man and realty agent, with offices at No. 84 State street, in repeating Mrs. James' description of the robbery.

"Mrs. James would not have answered the door, but she was expecting a plumber who was going to repair a heater. As soon as the man told her he was a police officer she attempted to slam the door. He put his foot inside, jumped in and threw her so that she struck her back and head.

"Putting a pistol within a few inches of her head he made her lead him to the back door where stood his two accomplices. They came in and they demanded that Mrs. James tell them where our money and valuables were kept or else they said they would shoot.

"One fellow kept his pistol levelled at her head all the time and made her sit in a chair as the other two ransacked all upstairs and then came down here and ripped everything apart on the first floor.

"As they were packing up a lot of valuable old silver we had in the dining room the telephone rang and one of the thieves answered, saying, 'Mrs. James is not at home this afternoon.'

"My wife had tried to get to the telephone, but the robber wouldn't let her and waved her into her chair with his gun. Then they took everything and ran out the front door after saying that they would shoot her if she came out.

"Mrs. James went right out after them and walked down to Foster street, where she told of her experience to the three gardeners. They told her they had thought something wrong when they saw the men get out of their machine and hurriedly switch number plates as they turned on Foster street."

A Simple Way To Remove Dandruff "Use Liquid Arvon"

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have. You will find, too, all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

RAIL BOARD ATTACK ON "LIVING WAGE" DISPLEASES HARDING

LEGISLATION TO REMEDY SITUATION SOUGHT

Washington, Oct. 31.—President Harding feels that the Chicago Railroad Labor Board, which attacked "the living wage," as a bit of "mellifluous phraseology," is completely out of touch with the railroad wage question.

The President feels very strongly on the question of the living wage. Inquiry at the White House left no doubt on this question. The President's advisers took from the files an extract of a previous utterance on the subject. The President said:

"The workman's lowest wage must be enough for comfort, enough to make his house a home, enough to insure that the struggle for existence shall not crowd out the things worth existing for."

Even while the Chicago Labor Board was rendering its decision against the living wage theory the President had under consideration the question of changing the act under which the Labor Board functions.

He held long conferences with Warren S. Stone, chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and acknowledged spokesman for all railroad labor. At the conclusion of the conference he called in W. L. McMenimen, labor representative on the board and one of the members who voted against "the living wage."

The President discussed with them in detail the effect of the decision aimed at the workingman's pay envelope and went into the question of legislation designed to remedy the situation that has developed at Chicago.

BOARD DISLIKED.

No secret is made of the general dissatisfaction in administration circles with the functioning of the Labor Board. Many officers close to the President hold that it could have averted the shop strike.

Primarily the President feels that the Labor Board should be located in Washington, in intimate contact with the rate fixing organization, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Department of Labor, which has an elaborate machinery already established for the study of wages and living costs.

DAVIS SUPPORTER.

Secretary of Labor Davis is a strong supporter of the living wage in fact and theory. He says:

"If it means anything to the worker the living wage means a wage on which he can really live—that is a pay envelope that will permit him to do a little more than merely meet the day-to-day cost of his necessities and enjoy something of life in addition. The merely living wage, in its original meaning, is something obsolete. He will never willingly go back to it. To this fact we may as well reconcile ourselves and adjust our economic life to it.

"I am convinced that this wider conception of what truly constitutes a living wage is entertained not alone by the workman himself, but is willingly conceded to him.

"Call it what you will I prefer to call the new wage the 'buying and saving' wage."

QUESTION IN CONGRESS.

Any recommendations that President Harding may make with regard to insuring a living wage for the railroad workers will receive the most sympathetic consideration in both houses of Congress. The question already is definitely pending before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee. Hearings are planned for the coming session. These plans will be broadened to include whatever proposals the President submits involving the same issue.

Representative John H. Smithwick of Florida, the only member of the House at the Capitol declared strongly for a living wage. He said:

"I am absolutely in favor of a living wage. Any legislation which in any practical way will insure a living wage will receive my enthusiastic support."

Other comment on the Labor Board's ruling was as follows:

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor:

"The sooner the Railway Labor Board is abolished and we depend once more on the good will and negotiations between railroad managements and railroad workers the better it will be for all concerned."

Editorial of Hearst 'Hits Nail on Head'

Chicago, Oct. 31.—William Randolph Hearst has laid down the great fundamentals of true Americanism in his editorial on wage reductions, A. O. Wharton, labor member of the Railroad Labor Board said here. He continued:

"The people of this country, especially those heading big industries, should read that editorial carefully and be guided by it.

"Mr. Hearst has hit the nail squarely on the head, and my own opinion of his views is shown by the fact that I quoted his editorial in full in my dissenting opinion on the Labor Board's maintenance of way wage decision.

"It is very gratifying to find in Mr. Hearst such a staunch advocate of justice for labor and labor everywhere should appreciate it."

Boston Labor Men Endorse Hearst Editorial

Endorsing heartily the editorial by William Randolph Hearst, in which the publisher championed the cause of a "living wage" as the principle on which wage settlements should be made, and which the Railroad Labor Board attacked, characterizing the term a "bit of mellifluous phraseology," leading labor men of Boston issued a "living and a saving wage," and denounced the present organization of the labor board.

"Mr. Hearst was undeniably right in saying that an unjustifiable lowering of shopmen's wages caused the strike," said William Walsh, president of the Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor, and business agent of the Boston Carmen's Union.

"Every settlement of wages must be based in whole or in part on the principle of a living wage, as Mr. Hearst wrote. This means enough to support a family, educate children, and lay aside something for a rainy day and old age. If an industry cannot operate and pay enough wages for the workers to maintain an American standard of living, then we must resort to public ownership."

Robert Fechner, member of the general executive board of the International Association of Machinists, said: "Mr. Hearst's views on the living wage are absolutely true. The American economic system is constructed on the basis of both a living and a saving wage.

"The Railroad Labor Board has itself endorsed this view in public statements, but in practice it finds ways to duck its professed principles."

"If the railroads cannot pay a living wage, it only bears out Mr. Hearst's contention that government ownership is the solution of the problems of our railroads," said President Aaron Velleman of Cigarmakers' Local No. 97.

John J. Kearney, a former vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, said: "The establishment of a living wage, so strongly championed by Mr. Hearst and Mr. Wharton, will always be opposed by interests who control both wages and living costs. Living wages may mean less dividends, hence the opposition."

Henry Abrahams, president of the Boston Central Labor Union, said:

"A living wage is not enough. What the wage earner must have is sufficient to pay his rent, purchase food, light and fuel, transportation, insurance, household furniture, medical care, medicine and clothes for his family, and also lay by something for old age.

"With the present wage, when the working man grows old he is either sent to some home or State institution or is supported by his relatives. He is a public charge.

"A board that would fix the wage of a father of a family at 23 cents an hour should tender their resignations. Certainly you would not call such a wage an American wage.

"Instead of being fixed by a government board, wages should be fixed by a conference between the representatives of the employer and the employe."

"The living wage, as described by Mr. Hearst, is the basis of American industrial life," said Secretary William K. Cleary of the System Federation of Boston & Maine Railroad employes. "What Mr. Hearst said as to the cause of the strike is also right, with the addition of the changes in working rules that amounted to wage cuts."

MEXICO HITS AT U. S. IN TRADE DISPUTE

By Associated Press.

Mexico City, Oct. 31.—Commercial relations between the Mexican government and all persons or groups of persons residing in New York State were under suspension today until further notice as the result of instructions sent the Department of the Interior by President Obregon.

The President also had the various Mexican state governments instructed to refrain from commercial intercourse with New York firms.

The immediate cause of his action was the writ of attachment obtained against the Mexican consulate in New York city in a civil action brought by the Oliver American Trading Company.

This writ was ordered lifted last night by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins at Nyack, N. Y. News of the lifting of the writ was filed to Mexico City at about the same time that dispatches telling of President Obregon's action were sent out from the Mexican capital.

President Obregon ordered the Foreign Office to apply Article 33, pertaining to pernicious foreigners, to Howard T. Oliver, president of the Oliver American Trading Company, should he attempt to return to Mexico City.

Oliver, said President Obregon's announcement, "has abused the traditional Mexican hospitality, and unsatisfied with material advantages he realized during his operations here, he sought to provoke a conflict between Mexico and the United States."

FITZGERALD SAYS G.O.P. GIVES BAY STATE HIGHEST PRICES IN U. S.

REPUBLICANS FAITHLESS TO THEIR TRUST, HE CHARGES

By FRED E. STANLEY

Webster, Oct. 31.—John F. Fitzgerald, Democratic candidate for Governor, speaking at rallies in Hampden, Hampshire and Worcester Counties, blamed the Republicans for giving Massachusetts the highest cost of living in the country.

In his speeches, Mr. Fitzgerald said in part:

"I have visited forty-three towns of the State in two days, and everywhere I have found the same conditions. The people of Massachusetts are complaining against the highest cost of living in the country.

"Gas rates have gone up 200 per cent. An adroit service charge enables an additional burden to be placed upon the consumers. The price of meat is the highest in the country. The people are without coal.

"Disabled veterans complain they are denied proper hospital care. Prices of the necessaries of life of all things the people eat and wear are going up by leaps and bounds. Every retail dealer knows that's the case and I could multiply them. Every woman who does the family shopping knows that she is paying more and getting less each week out of her family income.

"The farmers complain. They find no advantageous market. The tariff helps for all time the prices of all the farming industry and other materials they buy. Irresponsible milk combines are taking the farmers' milk and have them only keep a sheaf of bull hay in return while the State leaves the farmers to be exploited.

G. O. P. FAITHLESS.

"The Republican party has been faithless to trust. It defeated the soldiers' bonus bill with the excuse that it would cost too much. And with twenty-four hours passed in self-felicitation over this act the people, including the veterans, saw fifty millions of dollars a year.

"I say to the people now and impress it upon their minds, if the commonwealth is put into condition to run the Democratic party will find that the Democratic candidates for governor and lieutenant governor was the only ticket which would put all the people of the State before the people, including the veterans, as a matter of duty as a party.

"I will not take the time now to enumerate the many things which the Democratic candidate for Governor will do for the people of this State, but I do know that the Democratic party was organized to make good to the people when it came into power. The Democratic party was not made to exist for the purpose of making promises which it failed to keep after election.

"The primary purpose of Mr. Fuller's nomination by the Republicans was to save the Republican party of this State from the Democratic candidate for Governor. The Republicans will have a chance to vote for the next Governor of this State. They have a chance to vote for four years on Democratic Administration. Vote for four years of Democratic Administration."

WALSH SPEAKS TONIGHT.

Addressing a huge throng from a platform on a truck, Mr. Fitzgerald said at no less than eighteen out of rallies in the three counties he wound up the day at a mass meeting last night in Webster. Tonight Senator Walsh will address a monster meeting here at Auburn. The nearest rally for tomorrow closes with a grand windup tonight at the Worcester Casino. A third Democratic Senator Walsh will make his first speech in the Massachusetts campaign.

Speaking to audiences in Worcester County composed largely of farmers, Mr. Fitzgerald declared that if he is elected governor he will work energetically for the interests of the agriculturalists of the State. He declared that the present milk situation allows a fair producer four or five cents a quart for milk while the consumer is forced to pay four times as much cents, he said, in some cities.

URGES MILK SUBSIDY.

"The milk producer should be subsidized," said Mr. Fitzgerald, "just as much as the merchant marine should be subsidized. Milk is a necessity of life and it would be to the advantage of farmer and consumer alike that both should be protected."

At all the rallies the gubernatorial candidate was accompanied by other candidates on the Democratic ticket.

Among those who addressed the audiences were: John E. Swift, candidate for attorney general; Joseph A. Verano, candidate for treasurer; M. Fred O'Connell, candidate for Congress and John M. Thayer, candidate for district attorney of Worcester County.

Colonel Gaston and other candidates will also address the Worcester audience.

An interesting incident of the campaign was Mr. Fitzgerald's letter to Governor Cox. In his frank, manly letter Mr. Fitzgerald wrote the Governor, as follows:

DUTIES TO COX.

"On October 19, nearly three weeks ago, I called you to discuss the issue of the campaign from the same platform with me in a joint tour of the State. I said to you that I regarded the present methods of campaigning as obsolete and unsatisfactory, that the rallies were little more than rendezvous for meetings at which so many misrepresentations were made that the voters at the end of the campaign found it difficult to determine who is telling the truth, that there were many instances where debates had been conducted to amusements, supposedly. I outlined my plan to you with this statement:

"That you may have some idea of the charges that I will bring against the Republican machine and in the Commonwealth I will enumerate the following with the privilege of adding to them at any time during you, however, ample advance notice that you may have suitable opportunity to prepare a reply."

I then made fourteen charges against your administration, to which I have since made a score of others. I enumerated all of them, including those exposing the reactionary record of Republican control and all of them made in ample time to enable you to answer them without confusing the voters as to the truth of them near the end of the campaign. You have remained mute and contemptuously ignored all of their until yesterday, when you gave to the press a statement in which you brand me as a falsifier, describe my allegations as "Doctor Pangloss" whole pitiful attempt to bring honor upon the family name and charge that I obtained valuable personal information about you in a speech last Friday night at Brockton.

"Mr. Houston I stated that the Governor's Council, when you were presiding officer, voted to grant a loan of $7,868,000 of Cambridge subway bonds to a syndicate of Boston bankers, against the advice of the State Treasurer and Mr. Coffin of the Elevated trustees, who proved that the interest rate was outrageously high and would cause a loss of $3,000,000 to the State, which was absolutely proven to be true.

OFFERS APOLOGY.

"You admit that the facts as I relate them are true, with the exception that you did not vote for the loan.

"The loan as I described it was put through and the people paid the financial penalty which I have claimed. A memorandum issued from your office yesterday says that you wished to be recorded as voting 'No' on this matter.

"I accept this memorandum from your office as accurate. I accept your statement of the fact. I offer you no apology.

"You state that 'I prefer to be referred to as Doctor Fitzgerald.' I am at a loss to know where you have manifested my alleged preference in the matter. However, I am genuinely proud of the fact that the degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred on me by Notre Dame University, one of the most noted universities in the world which has conferred degrees on the most prominent men in the country.

"Now that you have abandoned your campaign of silence, I challenge you to stand up and defend yourself on these important issues:

"1.—What is your attitude on the State 'Volstead Act?' Do you favor it, as you are allowing the prohibition forces to believe? Or are you opposed to it as your friends intimate in certain quarters? Or have you no attitude on it at all?

"2.—Your party is pledging absolute law enforcement and returning to the old beer-and-wine Convention system. What is your attitude?

"3.—Do you favor State control of the control penal institutions? Are you will those organizations that would take away those functions from the courts as you protest to be? Or are you opposed to it, as your political friends are showing the county offices as to where and you are?

"4.—I charge that you caused the 'surcharges' to be filed, which allows the gas and electric corporations to impose an added surcharge upon their consumers.

"5.—I charge that you silenced Mr. Eugene C. Hultman, chairman of the Commission on the Necessities of Life, and said that he 'talked too much' because he dared to protest against the high prices of meat in Massachusetts, the highest in the country.

"6.—I charge that you voted against an investigation of telephone rates and service and that you knew the effort in the House of Representatives to reduce the outrageous price charged for gas by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company.

"7.—I charge that under your term as Speaker of the House more than $30,000 was expended to give 'junkets' to subservient members of the House and that the practice became so scandalous it was denounced by prominent Republicans as 'humiliating and disgraceful' and 'a system of public plunder.'

"These are some of the 'moral barges' which I make against you and which you dare not deny. I am ready to abandon my schedule of rallies for the remainder of the week in order that you may discuss these and other charges from the same platform with me."

MINISTERS HELD FASCINATION FOR SLAYER

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Ministers held a peculiar fascination for Mrs. Margaret Carleton, suicide slayer of Rev. Leonard H. Chevalier, Montana's "Bishop of All Outdoors," C. E. Booth the woman's former employer, said here today.

"I had several complaints from various men's where Mrs. Carleton worked for a engaging Chautauqua class and Mr. Booth, manager of the Mason Lowell Chautauqua Circuit.

I warned her twice after receiving complaints that she was unduly familiar with the ministers in the towns where she worked."

A fascinating woman of thirty-one and a good conversationalist, Mrs. Carleton held a love tryst with the state minister in Chicago about a month ago according to Mr. Booth.

Rev. Mr. Chevalier and Mrs. Carleton were seen together very often during the Chautauqua meeting here last month," he added.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat less meat and take Jad Salts if you feel Backachy

Too much meat may form uric acid, which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Big meat eaters can flush the kidneys occasionally by relieving them like they relieve the bowels, removing all the acids, waste and poison, else they may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad they have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the poisonous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any druggist, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and be free from all disorders. The famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent various kidney and bladder disorders.

COMPOSES VERSES ON LOVE

Fires Inspiration Amidst the Quiet of Strange Colony on Cape

The Flapper who spent three days as a member of the group at Charles Garland's "April Farm," in North Carver, has been writing a series of articles describing the life there. She has told of talking with Anna, Doris, Harriet and Alice, and has related her talks with Garland himself. Harriet announced to the group that the Ku Klux Klan threats got her worried, and she is anxious to leave the place, for a time at least. Anna, on the other hand, hopes the Klansmen come while she is there, as she "wouldn't miss it for worlds" Now go on with the story:

By THE FLAPPER
(CARYL FRINK)

Charles Garland did not return for luncheon.

"He's probably stopping at North Carver to eat," said Doris Benson, dishing up the onion and potato mess, "so let's not wait."

Doris put her head out of the window and hollered loudly for Alice, who had gone to feed the calf. The rest of us sat down and seized upon the black bread and cranberries. It had been a long morning, with lots of work, and everybody was starved.

The task allotted to Alice Edgerton (sister Anna had asked Doris if she had ever met Edgerton) was a thrilling one.

"Those nice quiet folks impossible," Anna said. "They've got about a million kids in the family, but it's the most quiet and orderly household I've ever been in.

Kids a Rest Cure

"Last Winter when I was so upset trying to decide whether to get married or not, I went to Alice's house to figure it out. You'd have thought I would have wanted to be alone, instead of in the midst of such a large family, but they're all so tranquil, even down to the last baby, that it's a positive rest cure to be around them."

At this point Alice came in to luncheon.

"I was talking about your family," said Anna. "I was saying they're the rowdiest bunch of rough necks I've ever been around."

"Which one does thee like the best?" inquired Alice.

"The baby, I think," said Anna.

"So do I," said Alice. "No— I think I like Ralph the best. He's so funny"

By the time they had named over the rest of the family the girls decided they didn't know, after all, which was their favorite.

"That reminds me, I must write to mother," said Alice. "It's got to be a terribly large letter this time. And I think I'll send them some cranberries in a box for Thanksgiving."

"When did you see them all last?" asked Anna.

"It was before this Summer," replied Alice. "I had a lovely visit with them."

I was wondering what Alice's Quaker family thought about her unconventional experiment on the Garland farm, but nothing was said about that.

"I haven't had time yet to ask you what you've been doing in New York," Alice said to Anna. "Does time like being married?"

Plan Open Forum

To tell you the truth, Al, I hardly know," responded Anna, looking very much like a child over her porridge. "I've been working days and the honorable husband has been working nights, which is a beastly arrangement. We don't get to see a great deal of each other.

"But that's to be changed in time. We've been thinking of taking a large apartment with some New York friends of ours, and keeping a sort of open forum where all our friends may drop in at any time of the day or night to discuss politics, art, letters, love and life. Don't you like the idea?"

"But isn't that making thy home life rather public?" asked Alice.

"No—at least it's better than being cooped up in one room. We can lock off a room to ourselves, you know."

"It sounds interesting, at any rate," conceded Alice. "Won't thee have some more potatoes?"

After luncheon, while Doris and I were doing the dishes, Doris told me a few things about her benefactress, Barley's mother.

Mrs. Garland a Poet

She told me that Mrs Garland—Mrs. Marie Tudor Garland—frequently came out on the farm to be quiet and alone.

"She writes, you know," said Doris. "And she's found that she can write better in this atmosphere than in any other. She wrote some of her poems out here."

"What poems?" I asked.

Doris ran into the other room to fetch a book of poems called "The Marriage Feast."

In reading these I thought I began to understand a little better the young man, her son, who had flung aside all the restrictions of convention in order to lead his own life in the way his heart dictated.

One called "Love," exactly fell in with Charles' interpretation of love.

"Love which holds back
Something in reserve
Will never know
The joy of giving,
The joy of constant death."

"I think they're beautiful, don't you?" sighed Doris over the dish water. She turned the pages until she came to lines that might easily have been—probably were—written about Barley.

Lines About Barley

"His features are perfect,
Like a young god's;
But it is the look
That startles you
And holds you."

When she had finished reading I thought I saw the same look in her eyes that I had caught there whenever Barley unexpectedly entered the room.

She read one more:

"Man, loving beauty, woos
To overtake and seize;
Then for a moment's ease,
Slays the thing he pursues."

Dorrie sighed again, and this time I thought I saw again the look that had rested on her face for a moment when she touched Barley's sleeve under cover of the shadow thrown across the table by the milk jug in the candle-light.

When the bishops layed their hands upon Dr. Slattery's head, the presiding bishop, Bishop Lawrence, said:

"Receive the Holy Ghost for the Office and Work of a bishop in the church of God, now committed unto thee by the imposition of hands; in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost—and remember that thou stir up the grace of God which is given thee by the imposition of our hands for God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power and love and soberness."

Thus far his condition has been excellent except for an irritating boil on the back of his neck. The physician was anxious to put Mr Fitzgerald to bed for a couple of days, but the doughty ex-Mayor decided to take a chance on the boil, and Dr Harrington insisted on accompanying him the remainder of the campaign.

Mr. Fitzgerald will be sixty next February.

WAITER TELLS OF LOSING SAVINGS

Fallen "Wizard" in a Happy Mood at the Trial of His Co-Defendants

[illegible] nearly [illegible] throng at the trial of Charles Ponzi, financial wizard, and his agents.

The intersession of this weighty subject, coming after a rather spicy interchange of pleasantries between counsel enlivened what otherwise would have been a rather drear session.

Mrs Anna Demears after testifying that she resided at No. 36 Payson avenue admitted to Special Assistant Attorney General William Flaherty that she could not positively identify Henry J. Nielsen on trial as one of Ponzi's leading associates.

Came then a series of questions and answers relating to notes and the like. Stepping short, Mr Flaherty turned to the witness and inquired:

"Do you think that now you could pick out Mr Nielsen after having looked over the men in the rear of the room?"

Mrs Demears glanced again at the defendants and replied: "Yes, I can."

NOT SURE OF IDENTITY.

Attorney George Stanley Harvey, counsel for Nielsen and John A. Baldero interrupted. "How did you know that she was able to identify him?"

Smiling, Mr Flaherty answered. "None of your business."

More questions. Then Mrs. Demears walked to the rear, stopped before the third man and said: "This is him."

"Is Mr Flaherty's Mr Harvey? Isn't she right?"

"I do not care to talk to you if you don't talk to me about mental telepathy," replied Attorney Harvey.

A chorus of giggles rose, causing Mr. Harvey to look rather surprised and Mr. Flaherty to grin openly. Said grin, however, faded when Mrs. Demears replied that she wasn't quite sure as to whether the man she had picked really was Nielsen.

Nielsen's statements as to the nature of Ponzi's business, witness averred, had influenced her appreciably in making an investment in the famed reply coupons.

PONZI IS CHEERFUL.

Ponzi is in a magnificent mood. Charles Ponzi, [illegible] to the utmost the inquisition into the $5,000,000 bubble that he blew and that blew him, first into undreamt opulence, and then into the Plymouth jail.

SAW ROAD TO WEALTH.

"I [illegible] employed in a North End restaurant at No. 3 Garden Court street, content with his modest wage and his task of producing the spicy viands of the place, when in blew Clemente Vancarello, an agent of Ponzi, and told Antonio a strange tale of finance whereby in 90 days one could get unbelievable profits with a small investment.

SUGGS RISKS TITLE IN HIS BOUT WITH TRAVERS TONIGHT

CHALLENGER IS SURE HE WILL GET AWARD

By JACK CONWAY.

Kid Opportunity walloped his right first against the door of the Mickey Travers homeshold tonight.

For the past year Mickey has been making desperate attempts to introduce this venerable citizen to pay him a visit. He gets his wish at the Grand Opera House this p m when Chick Suggs, New England featherweight champion, will be the young man in the other corner.

Travers has been after a bout with Suggs for a year. The sensational little colored fighter has taken on all comers with the exception of Travers.

"I can beat Mickey," Suggs has declared time and again.

But he has refused to meet him.

What caused some folks, who know the inner workings of the fistic art, to intimate that Suggs said he was too confident of his ability to win over the Vic Richardson entry.

You would do not have to chat with Suggs a few minutes to realize that he can't be very much impressed by anyone. In fact, the impression some manager or boxer or his manager will make a trouble to get Suggs's goat. Suggs and Travers should put up a darn entertaining bout. Both boxers are clever and they can punch.

Who would ask for more?

The tussle will be fought at 135 pounds ringside, which should find both men at their best.

Merna and Lawrey in the Semi-Final

Frank Merna, south Boston boxer, who left Tillie Lawrence of Medford an opponent in the semi-final eight rounder. Merna is the most consistent boxer from the ranks of the amateurs in a long time. Tillie has been boxing himself some good fights in the mountains.

There will also be two eight-rounders. Mickey Walker, local boy, and Homer Foley of the North End, while Larry Dobinson of Cambridge will mix with Jackie Ryan of Lowell.

Jack Perry Bested Shade in Milwaukee Conflict

You must hand it to Jack Perry of Buffalo, for boning up with two wins at the expense of Tillie Shade, heavy-weight champion of Milwaukee. Shade has defended a couple of times when we picked Shade to outpoint the Buffalo Jack. Indeed, when the Toledo scribe must watch off Perry's victory. Shade had some more Perry upset the apple by stabbing his jabber deep with a left.

At the Boston Arena next Monday night, Perry will try to convince Boston and New England fans that he must be given serious consideration in the race for the welterweight crown. He will have Dave Shade as an opponent.

Shade won over Jack Britton in Boston and Jack Britton over Jack Perry in Buffalo. How does that dope figure?

Shade has a fine ring record, showing he has had many troubles which upset him in his previous bouts. Perry has never knocked Shade down, but when they met at Wilson Barrs La

Anyone would be glad to see Shade in action and we should be interested to see what a happen if Perry can put a right hand punch to the jaw.

As for Tillie Lawrence, he is a very clever boxer, but he does not carry enough punch to stop Jack Perry.

Perry outpointed Lawrence and Mickey Walker.

Every champion has defeated some one on his way to the top.

Will Jack Perry go down to defeat in the Garden tomorrow night?

Mickey Walker's big heavy body put Lawrence through the ropes.

Britton laughs at this statement.

But who will win and how?

We shall have to wait to answer tomorrow.

GIANTS OBTAIN BENTLEY OF ORIOLES

New York, Oct. 31.—Jack Bentley, star of the baseball team of the Baltimore Club of the International League, has become the property of the New York Giants.

Secretary James Tierney of the Baltimore club made a brief announcement as follows:

"The Giants have purchased Jack Bentley for a substantial sum of money and some players."

No inkling of the amount of money or the number or names of Giants given in exchange for one of the most sensational pitchers in the game could be obtained.

It was learned however, that the trade which was reported to be in the works for a month or more was completed at the Giants' office [illegible] conference between President Charles A. Stoneham and Manager John McGraw of the world's champions and Harry Pulliam, president of the Baltimore club.

It was also revealed that Bentley, who was a Polo Grounds pitcher and a first baseman previous to his becoming a pitcher for Baltimore, would be used as a pitcher by McGraw. This would likely be the case with Left-hander Art Nehf and Bentley.

During the series last month between the Baltimore club and the New Haven club champions of the Eastern League Manager McGraw went up to New Haven to confer with Dunn on an offer to buy Bentley.

There were rumors that several other major league clubs had made [illegible] offers. McGraw, apparently wanted to beat them to it." At the time [illegible] reported that Connie Mack had offered $100,000 [illegible] refuse it to sell.

It would not be a surprise, however, to see Bentley traded to some other club. He may go to Cincinnati, for Owner Felder Eddie Hou[illegible] to Brooklyn for Pitcher "Dutch" Reuther.

Marlboro to Get Back on the Boxing Map With Star Card

The boxing game is to open at Marlboro on Friday evening. The Fasting A. C. of that city intends to hold weekly shows which will be held in Pastime Hall.

Tommy Leahy

As Marlboro has always been a good boxing town there is no reason for the game not going big there, as the place has as large a quota of good sports as any place of its size in the State.

The program for the opening show will consist of two six-round bouts an eight-round semi-final between Al Gagnon of Milford and Joe Delmont of Lawrence.

The feature bout will be ten rounds will be between Tommy Leahy of Worcester and Louis Hamlin the hard-hitting lightweight from Nashua, N. H.

Hamlin is well thought of by the French residents of the town, while Leahy has a large following in Worcester and surrounding cities who are willing to back him against any boy of his weight in the country.

AMATEUR HEAVIES IN RING BATTLES

There will be plenty of action when the amateur heavyweights clash in the simon pure tournament of the St. Joseph's T. A. B. at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square, Wednesday night.

At least six heavyweights will participate in the bouts. Four entries already have been received and it is the hope of President Cuddy that Hamlin and Young develop a heavyweight who will go after the laurels now held by Jack Dempsey.

In addition to the heavyweight class, two novice classes have been arranged. The boys of the 112 and 118 pound classes who never won prizes will fight it out. Two open classes will also be on the card. They are 125 and 135 pounds.

The foul selections will be made at this show for the team which will meet New York in the big inter city tournament which will be held at the Boston Arena November 8.

LOU HURLEY BEATS BARNEY McINTEE

Holyoke, Oct. 31.—Lou Hurley of New York stopped Barney McIntee of Boston in the third round of their ten-round main go at City Hall held under the auspices of the Valley A. C.

Romeo Roche of Holyoke received the decision over Johnny Corbett of Chicopee in the ten-round semi-final. Mickey Blaire of Indian Orchard was awarded a six-round decision over Young Dundee of Springfield and Eddie Paul won in the opening preliminary from Kid Smith.

ZBYSZKO IN HIS BEST FOR BIG MAT BOUT

"Stan" Zbyszko intends to be at the peak of his condition for Wednesday night's battle with Cliff Buckley in Mechanics Building, and if hard work in the gym counts for anything the veteran former world's champion will be at his best.

The Big Pole is not leaving anything unturned to be ready for a real battle. He knows that Buckley has never been beaten, except by Lewis and that after the defeat Cliff gave the Strangler an even up fight with the championship at stake.

Zbyszko, with this knowledge will go on record for a grueling affair with the fact always before him that the contest is to a positive finish without time limit of any kind.

Buckley also put in a great day and is confident of coming through a decisive winner.

Frank Judson will open the eyes of the fans by his great improvement, while the event in which Tommy Record and Billy Goodland is to meet has stirred up great interest in Somerville.

CUE CHAMPION MAKES RECORD

Here's the English billiards champion, Newman, who, in match play against Smith, ran 945 points on the break. This is within 52 points of the previous record of 997, made by Newman. At a later session Newman ran 972. In the tournament match against Smith played at Leeds

MANLY DANCES HIS WAY TO A DECISION

New Bedford, Oct. 31.—Charley Manly of this city danced his way to a decision over Jack Leadman of Buffalo, in a ten-round bout over which a small crowd failed to endthuse.

Manly fought on the run all night and although Leadman labored hard to make a fight of it the affair was too much of a retreat on Manly's part to look good.

Manly outpointed Leadman with light left jabs to the head and an occasional right swing to the same place.

Joe Leander of Newport lost to Young Gomes of this city in the semi-final. The decision was unpopular.

Jack Conway Says Suggs Will Keep His Title

W		L
72	Chick Suggs will still be feather-weight champion of New England after his ten-round bout with Mickey Travers tonight, says Jack Conway.	10

"It will be the fastest bout between little fellows that has been seen in Boston in a long time," says Jack, "but Suggs will win. There are some people who say Chick is another George Dixon. We don't go as far as that, but we do want the world to know he's the real class as a fighter. So is Travers. Watch these youths go."

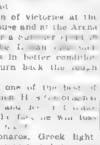
CALZA TO MEET HENDERSON IN MAT BOUT

George Calza, Italy's mighty wrestling champion, will be back in Boston Thursday night. He is due to battle Mort Henderson, the original "Masked Marvel," in a finish match, two falls out of three at the Grand Opera House, under the direction of Joe Howard.



George Calza

Calza is the most colorful wrestler that has ever been shown in Boston. He has a wonderful run of victories at the Grand Opera House and in the Arena last year. After a career spent in every Italy, the Italian champion says that he is in better condition now than ever to turn back the mat clock.

Henderson is one of the best of the older Indian [illegible] scientific matmen and he [illegible] secret of his [illegible] Wrestling [illegible] Thursday night.

JIMMY KELLY BEATS SOLDIER BARTFIELD

New York, Oct. 31.—Jimmy Kelley who recently fought Jack Britton for the welterweight title in Havana, sprung a surprise at Broadway Exhibition Club in Brooklyn last night, when he earned the judges' decision over the veteran Soldier Bartfield.

Bartfield led on points until the sixth round when Kelly shot a terrific left and Bartfield took the count. Had Kelly not grown tired, he would have finished the job done in this stanza. Both weighed in at 147.

In the semi-final Ed Cambet, noted as the heavyweight champion of Italy, lost his head while in a clinch with Frank Swoney in the third round, and hit his opponent on the shoulder. Referee Johnny McAvoy in the case of mayhem disqualified the foreigner.

MIDDLESEX HOLDS FOX HUNT ON NOV. 19

The annual fox hunt of the Middlesex Sportsman's Association will be held on November 18. The members will assemble at the clubhouse with their hounds at sunrise for an all day meet.

In automobiles, the party will start out in several large droves for Holliston, in and about which town the hunt will centre.

B. U. Harriers Start

A squad of thirty-five candidates reported for the Boston University cross-country team at the Charles bank Comer Course Holliston is very much pleased with the way that [illegible] men showed. Some fine material has appeared in the freshman class, and the coach thinks the prospects of this year's team are good.

Munroe School Wins

The champion Munroe School football team won its fourth Lexington Grammar School League game, by defeating the Hancock School, 45 to 0.

Concord Plays Saugus

DARLING IN HOSPITAL WITH HEAVY COLD

Those who saw "Chuck" Darling play against Boston University and Fordham must have been somewhat disappointed with his exhibition against Lafayette. Yet, today, there is no bigger guy on the Heights. With the news that Darling is now at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, suffering from a heavy cold, the [illegible] out [illegible] Saturday were learned, and the wonder is that the Minnesota blond was able to [illegible] all.

For two days last week Darling was in bed with a cold. Anxious to be ready for the Lafayette game, "Chuck" reported for practice, but it revealed a real condition from Coach [illegible] and his teammates Saturday afternoon. Although weak and still suffering with a cold, he entered the game and gave every ounce of strength he [illegible] to defeat.

For four long periods, the hard-working [illegible] has yet played Darling tried to [illegible] himself together and direct his team to victory. Saturday night, he was taken to the hospital, where he is now convalescing, and in the eyes of the college, he is regarded as the real hero of the game.

He Will Not Be Able to Play Saturday

Darling will probably not play against Villanova next Saturday. He will need a rest before the game with Baylor on the following Saturday, which promises to be every bit as hard as either the contest with Detroit or Lafayette.

With Darling out, Donnellan will play quarter. Although not the equal to Darling, Donnellan can punt for an average of sixty yards and is a good drop-kicker. He has had plenty of experience and should be able to call the plays capably against Villanova.

DARTMOUTH IN LINE FOR ANNUAL CONTEST AT THE STADIUM

STUDENT SENTIMENT IN FAVOR OF GAME

Harvard and Dartmouth elevens may meet in the Stadium next year. The game, last Saturday, was played under an arrangement and agreement for that day only, but there seems to be a definite sentiment among both Harvard and Dartmouth men for another agreement. The announcement some time ago that the Crimson and Green eleven would not play did not season any surprise, although the two university football managements had not been on friendly terms since 1912. That was the year that Charley Brickley's toe propelled a field goal for the only score of the game. Dartmouth lost, but there was some dispute about a Dartmouth touchdown. Now all has been forgotten and Hanover, N. H., and Cambridge are friendly. The game is one of the very best on the Harvard schedule, as proved by the tremendous crowd at the Stadium on Saturday.

Pitter and Patter in Vodville Chatter on Love

By Nat N. Dorfman

PITTER—I hear you were in love.

Patter—Yes, but I'm all right now, thank you

Pitter—Don't you believe that love makes the world go round?

Patter—Yes, but why fall in love when you can get the same sensation at less cost from home brew?

Pitter—I understand the girl you loved was decidedly blonde.

Patter—Yes, she decided it two weeks before I met her.

Pitter—Did she return you the ring after you broke off?

Patter—Oh, no; she's a telephone operator and she never returns a ring.

Pitter—Well, cheer up, old man, you know it's better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all.

Patter—Yes, in fact, it's much better to have loved and lost than to have loved and won, for then all would be lost.

Pitter—Apparently you believe that love leads to the altar?

Patter—Yes, I believe it does lead to the halter.

Pitter—Remember, not all men are slaves to woman's whim

Patter—No, not all men wrong by getting married

Pitter—Do you think Shakespeare had marriage in mind when he said, "Beware the brides of March?"

Patter—Oh, no; if he did he'd have probably said "Beware the brides of June."

Pitter—Ba that as it may, I'm seriously thinking of getting married

Patter—If you think seriously of it you won't get married.

Pitter—But she's the most beautiful girl in the world

Patter—Perhaps the milkman knows different

Pitter—I tell you her face is her fortune

Patter—You mean her face made the druggist's fortune.

Pitter—And she has money in the bank

Patter—But the question is, can you bank on it?

Pitter—I can see where your interest lies in the matter.

Patter—Oh no, it's just the principle of the thing with me that counts.

Pitter—Don't you think that all the world loves a lover?

Patter—Yes, particularly the fellows who sell engagement rings.

Pitter—By the way, what do wedding bells say when they chime?

Patter—Another good man gone right

Pitter and Patter close their act by singing a delirious ditty entitled "Two can live as cheap as one, but who wants to live that cheap?"

Q—Does face powder ever explode?

A—Doesn't your wife go up in the air when you stay out nights?

Q—I am about to be wed, but I fear I am in love with another. Are there any forget-me-nots left?

A—As far as we can see all girls are forgetting

Q—Do you think money will be the boss in the

A—All depends on whether you're married

Q—I am thirty-three years old and terribly bald I hate wearing a wig. What shall I do?

A—Nothing

Q—I am twenty-one years old and my wife is thirty-three What can I do about the difference in our ages?

A—Do nothing Your wife no doubt has already straightened out the matter of her age with her friends.

A—What's good for a headache besides a Scotch high ball?

A—Who cares?

Q—Do you believe in love at first sight?

A—Yes, but a second look doesn't hurt.

Q—Tell me candidly, do women like handsome men?

A—No, we do not understand Einstein's theory!

Careful Camouflage

The father of a musical daughter was talking to a friend at the door. In the sitting room the piano was going full pelt.

"Is that your daughter playing?" asked the caller

"Yes," replied the proud father. "Good music, isn't it?"

"Does she always play as strenuously as that?"

"Oh, no!" said the father; "but her young man is in the sitting-room, and she is pounding out that music so as to drown the sound of her mother washing dishes!"

Out of Place

Among the guests at an at-home was a distinguished man of letters He was grave and very silent

One of the guests asked the hostess why he looked so sad and what made him so retiring

"Well, you see," said the hostess with a bright smile, "he can't talk anything but sense."

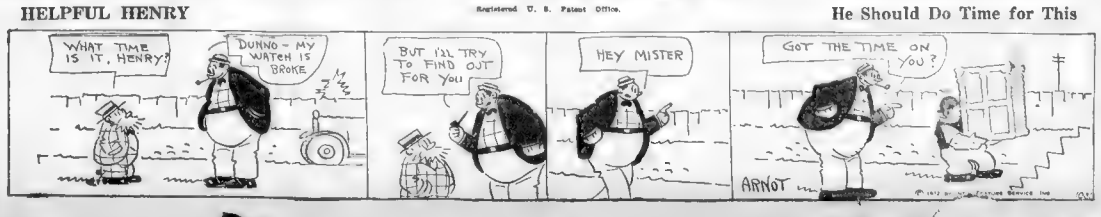
He Should Do Time for This



Medbury Says Men and Women Are Equal Except in the Divorce Court

SEX equality is a wonderful thing and men and women are now equal until they go into the divorce court.

THIS is the place where "The Woman Who Pays" becomes "The Woman Who Collects."

SHE shares in everything you've got except your debts. She has the best witnesses that money can buy. Why shouldn't she, you pay for them.

YOUR mother-in-law is usually the star witness. She knows the truth, but she isn't on speaking terms with it.

EVERY time her mother starts weeping on the stand the daughter has to cry to keep up the strength of the case.

ONE woman's tears not only reached the judge, but they turned his heart into a floating kidney.

HER weeping wins the case and then her lawyer shows up the next day with a broken arm from patting himself on the back.

HE doesn't have to know anything about law as long as his client knows how to cry.

SHE usually faints during the proceedings so that her attorney will have time to go out and rent some more witnesses.

SOME wives are wonderful, they tell about money you've got that you never knew you had.

ONE dame took everything her husband possessed and left him with nothing. Then her attorney got up and demanded half of that.

THE court gets you either way. If you pay what the judge orders, you go broke, and if you don't pay, you go to jail.

A SINGLE guy is the only man who can honestly say that he's working for himself.

A MAN'S wife may be his silent partner through life, but she's sure noisy when she gets into court.

MOST any woman can live on love, but alimony is more substantial.

ALWAYS remember, "He who laughs last, laughs best," and he who laughs best is a bachelor.

HUNDREDS of men all over the country are preaching to us that we should stick to the "straight and narrow path." It's hard for a man to keep on the right road these days when there are so many detours.

IT'S all right to climb to the top of the ladder of success, but somebody has got to stay down at the bottom to hold the ladder.

THERE'S more room at the bottom than there is at the top and a lot of people would rather stay below where it's not so crowded.

OPPORTUNITY knocks once at every man's door, but the trouble is it comes around early in the morning before any of us are up.

MANY people mistake the knock of opportunity for that of a bill collector.

THE SIGHT OF SIGHTS

By Our Seer

I have seen the Germans in back formation mowa down by the Loops Ports at Los Angeles. I have seen the Boston women make those en masse counter attacks on the bargain trenches on Washington street. I have seen the Italian Alpineers dash from their dugouts at 5 p. m. on a South End street. I have seen—well many a sight of grand and glorious stuff, but decidedly incomparable sight of sights was the charge of the Dry brigade on the bar when the good old Rum-mania of the Hang & Haw Line reached the Three-Mile Limit.

WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER

See This Romance of Princess Mary Tudor Starring Marion Davies in Super Motion Pictures Which Are Now Showing at the Park Theatre

World-Famous Story of the All-Conquering Power of Love Over the Heart of the Wilful and Beautiful Sister of the Autocratic King Henry VIII.

Princess Mary, Surrounded by Her Ladies in Waiting, Plans Elopement With Brandon.

By Charles Major

WHEN the duke entered the king's room Henry came to him: "My Lord, you are opportunely arrived. So good a friend of the people of London can help us greatly this morning. Our friend Brandon has been arrested for the killing of two men in a brawl before last in Billingsgate ward. I am sure there is some mistake, and that the good sheriff has the wrong man, but right or wrong we will turn him out, and ask your good offices."

"I shall be most happy to serve your majesty, and we go to London at once to see the lord mayor."

In the afternoon the duke returned and had a private audience with the king.

"I did as your majesty requested in regard to Brandon's release," he said, "but on mature reflection I thought it best to remand him again before proceeding further. I fear there is no question but I have done in the right man. It seems he was out with a party of watermen concerning whom he has had trouble and stabbed two of them in the back. It is a very serious case and the citizens are much incensed over it, owing partly to the fact that such occurrences had been so frequent of late. I have, under the circumstances, held the view of the fact that your majesty will soon call upon the city for a loan to make up the queen's dower, it would be well not to antagonize them at present, but to allow Master Brandon to remain quietly in confinement until the ado is over, and then we can snap our fingers at them."

"We will snap our fingers at the scurvy burghers now and have done with the matter," replied the king grimly. "I want Brandon released at once, and I shall expect your report from your predecessor, my lord."

Buckingham left the room to avenge had slipped himself into the dress that time, but he was not sure where evil was to be averted, and could wait. Then it was that the council was called, during the progress of which Mary and I had time to obtain an audience of the king.

Buckingham had gone to pay his respects to the queen, and on his way back found Mary waiting for the king in the ante room, and went to her.

At first she was irritated at the presence of a man, whom she so detested, but a thought came to her that she might make use of him to get home to her own in the old days and cozy surroundings of London and also know, or thought she knew, that a smile from her coming as it would everything with him, she had ample evidence of his devotion to and she hoped that she might prevail upon Brandon to accompany Buckingham without arousing her dueness's secret.

Much to the duke's surprise, she greeted him and gave a coming welcome, saying: "My lord you have been kind to us of late and have not shown us the light of your countenance. I am glad to see you once more, for in the rooms

The pattern is cut in four sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 2¼ yards of 36-inch material.

A PRACTICAL UNDER GARMENT IN WAIST OR SKIRT LENGTH AND WITH OR WITHOUT RUFFLE

Finishing in waist length, with the usual back or front closing, and the waistband, the garment will serve to hold a skirt, drawers or bloomers worn with it. It may be finished in "slip-on" style without the band and have a casing at its lower edge to hold an elastic band. This makes a convenient slip waist to cover a waist of jean or muslin, under a dress of sheer material.

The Pattern is good for crepe, batiste, voile and silk, also for outing flannel and crepe de chine. It is cut in 6 Sizes: 2,4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. A 6 year size requires 2½ yards of 36-inch material.

MAN AND MAID--By Elinor Glyn

By Elinor Glyn

THUS when we arrived and went up in the lift to the sitting-room, we found him among the first to greet us.

The Duchesse kissed us both fondly, and said many pleasant things, and having placed me in a suitable chair, brought everyone to me, and presented Alathea to them all.

They were the very creme de la creme of the Faubourg who could be collected in Paris—many are still in the country. Coralie was there, with two resentful pinpoints in her clever little eyes, but the most gracious words on her lips.

They none of them could find fault with the appearance of my wife—nor her manner. She has the ways of the ancient regime like the Duchesse. I could see that she was having a huge success.

While everything seemed to be going beautifully and all the company had gone on into another small ante-room where the "gouter" was, my dear old friend came to me.

"It is not progressing Nicholas—Hein?" ‡

"There is some screw very loose, Duchesse. She absolutely hates me and wants to go and live out of the flat!"

"Fiens!—She is jealous of some one, Nicholas. It is not possible that you have still—?"

I did not grow angry.

"No, indeed, that is ever long ago, but I do believe she thinks it is not. You see the person in question comes to see a relative who has married an anticaire on the floor above me, and Alathea has seen her on the stairs and imagines she comes to see me!"

"And you cannot tell her?"

"I am not supposed to know it would matter to her!"

"Hon. Do you really love the child, Nicholas?"

"Chere amie, with my whole heart. I only want her in all the world."

"And she is being impossible for you surely! I know her character—if she thinks you have a mistress—her pride is of is diable!"

"It is, indeed."

The Duchesse laughed.

"We must see what can be done, dear boy. Imagine though what I have discovered! That infamous father took the money that you gave me, when the affair had already been settled by le Colonel Harcourt with your money! A relation of mine attested at the investigation and had to know the facts. Nicholas, you press chevalier! You paid twice, and never said a word! You are of a devotion! It was splendid you, but my poor Hilda is heartbroken that you have been so pillaged."

At that moment the crowd returned from the other room and the Duchesse rose and left me.

Coralie now sat with me.

"Mes compliments, Nicholas! She is lovely! But what a fox—then!"

"Am I not? It is so delicious to find things out for oneself!"

Coralie laughed; she has a Philosophic spirit, as I have found always those much love-battered ones possess. She accepts my defection and again looks to the main chance to see how she can benefit by it.

At last the whole thing was over and Maurice and I had a cigarette together in the tea room.

"People would be crazy, simply crazy, my dear chap," about Alathea, he told me. She was "seduisante," how right I had been! How fortunate I was! When was I going to England?

He said farewells after this and once more my wife and I were alone in the brougham.

Alathea wore her mask. Having been received now as my wife, and by the Duchesse whom she loves and respects, she knows she cannot go on suggesting she will not live in the flat with me. She cannot bring herself to speak about Suzette, because the inference would be that she objects. I wondered if the Duchesse had been able to say anything to her.

She did not speak at all and went straight to her room when we arrived.

It was five minutes past eight when she came in to the sitting-room.

"I am sorry if I have kept you waiting," were her first words.

At dinner we spoke ceremoniously of the party. And when we went back to the salon she went straight to the piano and played divinely for an hour.

The music soothed me. I felt less angry and disturbed.

"Won't you come over and speak now?" I called in a pause, and she came over and sat down.

"Don't let us talk tonight," she said. "I am trying to adjust things in my mind. I want you to go to my mother tomorrow, if you will agree. She is ill again, and has not been able to start. From there I will tell you if I can force myself to keep on with it or no."

"I cannot understand why it should be so difficult, the idea did not affright you when we first talked of it. You voluntarily accepted the proposal made your bargain, promised to stick to it,

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Big men do come and go. Families do rise up and then sink back. Happenings and gossip here in Chicago have suggested this column.

* * *

The McCormick family, of International Harvester fame, although only in its second generation, has handed over the presidential directions of its affairs to one not a member of the family.

Alexander Legge, the new president, is declared to be an unusually capable executive of the go-getter type. I'm told that he is rather blunt, rather brusque, dominating, lacking in tact, but extremely aggressive, energetic and ambitious. Apparently the next generation McCormicks coming along, but none of them is yet old enough or experienced enough to take the helm.

* * *

The running of another gigantic enterprise, the Pullman, has also just been taken by a new man in no way related to the family that founded it. This new man is E. F. Carry, formerly president of the allied concern that the Pullman Company recently absorbed, and the example is that a main purpose of the Pullman directors in acquiring this concern was to acquire with it Mr. Carry.

There are whispers that the infusion of this new blood into the Pullman Company will mean the infusion of new policies and improvements in furnishing us with transportation comforts. I learn that some sixty experiments are now being made through actual tests on cars. Structural changes are also in process of experiment. This is good news, for the Pullman upper and lower berths of today are almost as awkward and uncomfortable as they were two decades ago.

Mr. Carry certainly has an opportunity to obtain the good will of the American people. Will he succeed? Those who know him say he will.

* * *

One hears all sorts of stories about big changes that may occur among the packers.

One story is that no fewer than three packer families may step down before very long from supreme direction of their affairs.

J. Ogden Armour, gossip says, would like to lighten the inordinate burden he has been carrying for a generation.

Gossip also says that there may be developments affecting both the Cudahy and Morris families, one result of which would be the shifting of active managerial duties to other shoulders.

Whether anything or everything along these lines will actually develop, I don't know. But I rather think, something will.

FOURTH-ATLANTIC NATIONAL ELECTS

At special shareholders' meeting of the Fourth Atlantic National Bank the following new directors were elected: Frank R. Briggs, George H. Corey, William J. Fallon, Albert J. Foster, Lee M. Friedman and James G. Knowles. These additions reflect recent absorption of the Peoples National Bank by the Fourth Atlantic.

WHEAT VALUES HELD DOWN BY SELLING

Scattered commission house selling together with lack of demand proved sufficient to hold down values on the Chicago wheat market. Initial prices here, which ranged from ¼c. to ⅝c. lower, with December 1.14⅛ to 1.14¾, and May 1.16 to 1.13 were followed by a slight rally and then a fresh decline.

Prices Run Off in Last Hour in New York After Day of Renewed Strength

MAY STORES UP MORE THAN 11 POINTS

Prices were run off in the last hour on the New York Stock Exchange, after a day of renewed strength. A feature of the market was the boom in May Stores, which was up more than 11 points.

U. S. Steel, which had added 1¼ at its day's best, was pushed back for a loss.

Standard Oil of New Jersey yielded more than 4 points, and Baldwin, Pacific Oil, Producers & Refiners and United Retail Stores all 3 or more. Industrial Rayon declined 2.

STUDEBAKER SELLS OFF.

There was heavy selling of Studebaker, which dropped over four points in reflection of speculative disappointment that directors had failed to declare another extra dividend.

Buying in the belief that technical conditions warranted a rally caused an upturn in prices in mid-afternoon.

Pullman, Associated Dry Goods, U. S. Smelting, Crucible and Gulf States Steels, Corn Products, Allied Chemical, Consolidated and Peoples Gas, Dome Mines, American International and Stromberg Carburetor were advanced 1 to 2¾ points.

A better inquiry also prevailed for railroad shares, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Reading, St. Paul and New Haven mounting 1 to 2 points.

Weakness, however, persisted in low-priced domestic oils, which ultimately caused some recessions from the high levels in the strong stocks.

DOME MINES AT HIGH.

Trading sentiment was considerably mixed, one division holding to the view that prices were still too high and must necessarily undergo further readjustment, while another group maintained that fundamental conditions were all in favor of a rise and that the short interest had pushed its operations too far.

Dome Mines sold at a 1922 high, up 1¾, at 44¼.

Money renewed at 5 and rose to 5¼ per cent.

Wall St. Gossip

MONDAY 470 separate stocks appeared on the tape, a new high record. Former high record was 458, last April.

"KATY'S" foreclosure sale has been put off another month to give Interstate Commerce Commission time to complete examination of lengthy records.

MEXICAN PETE still looks dangerous and more scenes of wild speculation in this issue are still expected in many quarters.

CONTINENTAL CAN'S expected 7 per cent. dividend rate is unlikely to materialize this year.

STANDARD OIL of California is said to have liquidated some of its holdings in Pacific Oil.

GEORGE F. BAKER is reported in a move to lift the Erie issues, of which he is said to be the most heavy holder, out of their present low levels.

JULIUS KAYSER has profited by a broad market all the year to date in the business realm.

SINCLAIR OIL'S sales volume for September shows increase of approximately 25 per cent. over August month, 1921. Reports also show Sinclair's foreign business steadily increasing.

EXCHANGE BASIS entities each holder of Mex Pete to 3⅛ shares of Pan-American B (including 25 per cent. stock dividend). In other words, each point fluctuation of Pan-American B means 3⅛ points fluctuation in market value of Mex Pete.

CANADIAN PACIFIC net after expenses for year's first nine months shows decline of $2,052,322, against same period last year, despite September increase of $265,883.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN has applied for permission to issue $366,573 5½ per cent. notes, payable to Pullman Co. in payment for 500 box cars.

STOCK EXCHANGE listings exceed pre-war total three times over.

DOME MINES for six months ended September 20 reports profits of $970,297 after expenses, taxes, depreciation, etc.

PRINCE & WHITELY — Railway Labor Board's pronouncement of the "living wage" is a very bullish argument on rails.

H. K. EVANS—I think that stocks should be picked up on any further week ends.

GOODBODY & Co.—There should be a rally during the day, but until we have more definite signs of a sustained rally would be cautious in making commitments on the long side.

W. J. WOLLMAN & CO.—Believe rally should be seen in market and would purchase standard issues on any pronounced weakness.

KLAN A CURSE, WARNS ALLEN OF KANSAS

By HENRY J. ALLEN,
Governor of Kansas.

Great Bend, Kan., Oct. 31.—The principal menace of the Ku Klux Klan is in the lawlessness it suggests.

It arouses the mob spirit and its policy of secrecy and masking provides a cloak behind which acts of barbarity and cruelty are committed.

While these acts may not always be committed by Klansmen, they are committed under the cloak adopted by the Klan. When we seek the responsible heads of this order they cannot be found.

Yesterday, a new masked order calling itself the "true blue," made its appearance in Oklahoma. Its masked members attempted to run away the constable of a township and when the flight was over one man was dead and several were injured. Tomorrow it may be another order wearing black masks.

Every day there comes to me some abortive effort or permission to form himself because he is afraid of the Klan.

The furtiveness with which the Klan is carrying on its work, the terrorism it inspires and the deeds that have been done in its name all unite to produce a condition that cannot be tolerated in a State that believes in law and order.

The attorney general has been directed to bring proceedings of ouster against the order as soon as he can locate the responsible heads of it.

It has no charter to do business in this State, as all incorporated organizations doing business in Kansas must have. If the Ku Klux Klan continues to grow and the retaliation measures also multiply, there are going to be new laws in the United States the dangers of a race war.

We also will have in many communities that curse that has bathed Ireland in blood—war between religious bigots. There exists in the hearts of this land protection to every man in his political and religious rights, the administration of those laws is in the hands of the Government created by the people.

"Pistol Shot Away From Blood," Says Allen

Great Bend, Kan., Oct. 31.—"I think we are no more than one pistol shot from the condition they are having in blood-drenched Ireland today," Governor Henry J. Allen declared in a political speech here.

"I appear in this town and I find men hating each other," he said, "this man being hated because he is a Catholic and this man because he is Klansman and your community is torn by a thing our fathers gave their lives to get rid of."

HONOR DAN HEALEY'S MEMORY

When the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul's crack train, "The Pioneer Limited," pulled out of Chicago during the past week, it carried a dining car which bore in gilt letters on its sides the name "Dan Healey," in honor of the late Dan Healey who had been for years one of the best-known dining-car conductors in America.

According to F. D. Dodge, New England general agent for the road, this is the first instance of a railroad naming passenger train equipment after a deceased employe. If ever an employe deserved the distinction Dan Healey did. For over forty years he had been an institution on the road. Many are the stories told of his rare tact and his almost uncanny gift for remembering names and faces. Though functioning as a dining-car conductor, he was credited with being one of the best traffic solicitors in the company's employ, for all who once had the good fortune to enjoy his hospitality made it a point of using the company's trains from that time on.

Numerous Boston residents have had the experience of entering Dan's car, after a lapse of a year or more, and being instantly recognized and greeted by name. His many friends in New England will doubtlessly be glad to know of the tribute to his memory.

PORTLAND ASS'N TO BANQUET

The annual banquet of the Portland Railway and Steamship Traffic Association will be held at the Falmouth Hotel on November 13th. A number of local transportation men, members of the association, are planning to defy the 13th jinx and attend.

Three Champions---Three Educators

You Can Learn From These Three Faces How Unimportant Prize Fighting Is in Modern Civilization

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

We show three pictures. Young men, seeing them, will do their own thinking about the importance of prize fighters and their achievements.

Carpentier, Young French Champion, of Highly Civilized Type, Recently Pounded to a Jelly by the Owner of the Face Below.

With a face of unusual refinement for a prize fighter, with intelligence far excelling that of the average prize fighter, with a body, in proportion to its weight, as efficient as any seen in a century, this young Frenchman held his own for years, including years in which he fought in the trenches. It was all the American champion, bigger, heavier, younger, could do to beat him.

But he was annihilated in short order, left crushed and helpless by a young Senegalese negro known as "Battling Siki," whose face you see here.

Notice the difference in the two faces, the Carpentier and the Siki face. Which would you rather have? Which is the higher type? If you had a face like Carpentier's you wouldn't change it for Siki's face, although in the change you might become strong enough to knock out ALL the champions, strong enough to knock out a whale or an ELEPHANT.

Siki, the Senegalese Negro That Easily Beat Into Unconsciousness the White Man Whose Face Is Above.

You don't like the face of the gentleman of Senegalese birth, but that face gives him much of his power. It gives insensibility.

There is a third face. The owner of that face has no individual name of his own. "Mr. Gorilla," you might call him, politely, if you met him in the forest of the Gabun region, where he thrives under a sun hotter than any Mr. Siki ever knew.

The idea here, young gentlemen, is to make you see and realize how little a mere prize fighting success amounts to.

Here Is the Real Two-Legged Champion. Put Siki and Carpentier in a Room With Him, and Dempsey, Too. Come Back in Five Minutes and You Will Find the Three "Superior Beings" Torn to Pieces, and Mr. Gorilla, Uninjured, Calmly Examining the Fragments.

The Senegalese with a forehead lower than that of the French champion, with a facial angle that only tens of thousands of years of evolution could change, to make room for intellect, conquers the higher type.

And here the gorilla whose face tells the story of his "mind," represents a development that could conquer with the greatest ease any half dozen human beings.

Have a healthy body, live wisely, take exercise. But don't envy, don't admire the gorilla class, don't pay to see that class perform.

Once men HAD to fight with clubs, with fists, with teeth, with rocks. They put their brains to work. Now a child of ten standing off a hundred yards could end Mr. Gorilla.

Civilization, one of these days, will end the popularity of Mr. Gorilla's successor, namely Mr. Prize Fighter. Put YOUR brain to work. Muscle is out of date.

Decreases in Child Labor

By Karl M. Elish

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The marked decrease in the number of children between ten and fifteen years old who are at work, shown by census figures for 1920, just published, is more apparent than real, according to Dr. Alba M. Edwards, census expert of the Department of Commerce. The question of child labor remains a problem, accentuated by the Supreme Court recent decision, despite the optimistic figures of the census of 1920.

The number of boys and girls at work in 1920, according to the statistics, compiled as of January 1 of that year, was 1,060,858, a decrease of 929,367 from the 1910 figures. But—and here is what largely nullifies the encouragement of the 1920 census—the 1910 census was compiled in mid-April, when Spring planting operations were at the peak and farmers throughout the country were begging for help. In January, however, the number of farm laborers is at its lowest ebb.

"It is believed," Dr. Edwards' report states, "that when the enumeration was made in 1920 many children, usually employed as farm laborers were not then at work and were not returned by the census enumerators as gainfully occupied. This appears to have been true especially in the case of children living on the home farm. The enumerators' schedules show that a considerable proportion of such children were returned as neither attending school nor being gainfully occupied."

The decrease in the number of child wage earners in 1920 was widespread throughout the country. Both in cities and rural district the figures show marked decreases. In only two classifications did their number increase—clerical occupations and public service"—where their numbers jumped from 637 to 1,120 and 71,001 to 80,140, respectively. All the States showed decreases in the proportion of boys gainfully employed, with the District of Columbia standing alone with an increase. In the proportion of girls at work Arizona and the District of Columbia were the only units to show increases.

The encouraging decreases in child labor figures Dr. Edwards attributed in part to increased legal restrictions, more stringent compulsory school attendance laws and the better enforcement of these clauses of laws.

"It is probable also," he wrote, "that the greater popular disapproval of child labor decreased the tendency to employ children."

Turkish Massacre

Editor Boston American:

I see by the papers that the Turks are back on their old job of butchering Christians. From all accounts it seems that the killing is being done by the latest improved methods. Airplanes drop bombs, poison gas, flame throwers, machine guns and all the other paraphernalia of Christian warfare are employed by these heathens in the extermination of our Christian brothers. Now, what gets me is how does the Turk get possession of all these killing devices? There are no munition factories in Turkey. Neither are there any Krupps or Schneiders among the followers of Mohammed and Buddha. The only explanation I can find is that the Turks get their massacreing outfits from their Christian brothers. W. A. RYAN.

Called a Menace

Editor Boston American:

The Ku Klux Klan I personally think are a menace to the country. They are a body of men trying to promote ill feeling and trouble wherever they are, and also attend to everybody's business but their own. The sooner this country wakes up and puts a stop to gang meetings the better off they will be. A. L. K.

Vaccination

Editor Boston American:

The Turk in Europe has not been an unmitigated evil. On the contrary, he discovered a sure antidote, so they say, to that most virulent pest, the smallpox. That is, he was the first to practice vaccination, which was introduced into England in 1717 by Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, wife of the British Minister to Turkey. Nearly a century afterwards Dr. Edward Jenner came forward with his vaccination, in effect the same practice, which, after opposition died down, became exceedingly popular, was accepted as a godsend by the practitioners, and made the lucky doctor rich as well as famous.

Ku Klux and Fascismo

Editor Boston American:

As an Italian, a scholar and a teacher, I beg a little space in your columns in denial of editorials and other announcements in the press the country over likening Ku Kluxism with the Italian Fascismo. That is a great error. Ku Kluxism is crime, open and notorious, pure and simple. It is an organization to violate the rights of man. Fascicti)sm is patriotism. The Fascisti fight face to face, and strive to enlighten that spirit in Italy which has so recently been betrayed. Free Masonry favors it. Fascicti)sm is patriotism conservative and honorable. Ku Kluxism is crime and treason.

Mother Dearest Gift of Life

By Winifred Black

THEY'RE making a picture of the life of Lincoln in Hollywood.

And when they get it done they're going to put the film away in Washington, and it will be kept in a vault until February 12, 2109, the 200th anniversary of Lincoln's birth, and then it will be brought up and shown to the Americans of that day.

By that time, I suppose, we won't have any use for such a motion picture at all—somebody will have discovered a way to turn a crank and bring all the voices of any certain era back, saying exactly what they did say at any certain moment.

And by that time probably they will have discovered that every human being who exists makes some kind of an impression upon the very air which can be reproduced at will by some sort of instrument. And all you'll have to do in 2109, if you want to know what Harding looked like and whether Mary Garden really was a great Salome or not, will be to press a button or turn a crank or something.

Time and space—they seem to be vanishing from the face of the earth.

But most of all, do you know what I should love to see?

A little curly-haired girl with clear, gray eyes, tucking up her queer, old-fashioned petticoats and wading in the little brook, way back in Wisconsin, years ago, and wondering what she would do when she grew to be a woman and where she would live.

Planning without a doubt what kind of a house she would have and naming her dream children, one by one, as little girls have done for centuries, and will do for centuries yet.

Wouldn't you like to see your mother as she was when she was a little girl?

Wouldn't you like to walk with her up out of the sunshine of the sweet valley of childhood into the rugged road that leads sometimes through the deep woods and sometimes through dark swamps, but always steadily, steadily up and up to strong, victorious, loving, gentle womanhood?

If I had all the beauty and all the wealth, and all the genius and all the achievement to choose from, I should choose to see again my mother's face and hear again her voice that sang me to sleep.

You now—what would you choose?

SEEN AND HEARD

A BOSTON Baptist minister, who does not want his name mentioned for obvious reasons, said the other day, that he got up every Monday morning at 3 a. m. and did the family washing and other domestic duties, and the amount saved allowed him to put his two sons through Harvard College and one girl through Wellesley College.

The opening of a new hospital for afflicted and neglected children at Canton marks another advance step in the progress which has marked Massachusetts in this respect for the past twenty-five years. The hospital is under the care of the State Department of Public Welfare.

DR. ROBERT W. HASTINGS, who died recently at Brookline at the age of fifty-six, was a strong contender that noise in city streets caused disease. DR. CHARLES J. BLAKE was also a strong advocate of this theory in his writings on otology.

PREMIER CLEMENCEAU, the "Tiger of France," will visit our shores about November 18. He shows great enthusiasm at the prospect of visiting the United States again, his previous sojourn occurring over fifty years ago.

MAJOR JAMES BROWN, the first American officer to get prisoners outside the American lines during the World War, who was cited for bravery and awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and patted on the back as a good fellow by GENERAL PETAIN, came to Boston a few days ago and visited his old friends.

Three loads of coal being unloaded at the same time, on the same street, but at three different houses! Such was the scene that greeted the eyes of passersby on Mountfort street, Back Bay, the other day.

Greater Boston youngsters have discovered a new way to blow up their footballs. They "borrow" a little air from an auto tire, usually a spare at the rear of some unoccupied car. By slipping the rubber tube of the bladder over the valve the football is inflated without any effort on the part of the boy.

DANIEL J. GLEASON, who served in the capacity of referee in the famous Stillman case which proved Baby Guy to be a legitimate child, has submitted his bill for services rendered, which amounts to a trifle lower than $24,000.

Word received from Washington brings forth the startling disclosure that more than 1,000,000 persons with incomes above $5,000 have evaded making returns on their income tax blanks. The Department of Justice is to start a nation-wide drive to bring the delinquents to task.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON FUTURE POWER

By Garrett P. Serviss

I HAVE been studying with growing interest the atlas of the world's water power, prepared by the United States Geological Survey. Just now, when everybody is deeply concerned with the problem of conserving coal, this subject comes conspicuously to the front.

The world's coal deposits are not inexhaustible, but its supply of water power is inexhaustible, as long as the sun continues to raise moisture from the sea, and streams nourished by the sun-raised moisture continue to descend from the mountains and the highlands, carrying the condensed water back to the sea.

Having learned, rather late, that coal cannot always supply his growing need for power and heat, civilized man is at last beginning to take careful account of the world's water power, which until recently was left almost undeveloped. The invention of hydro-electric plants has been the stimulating agency in the utilization of the energy of descending water; in the substitution of Giant Gravitation for King Coal.

A question of universal interest is: "How much of the power has already been utilized, and how much, according to the best obtainable information, still remains to be brought into the service of man?" The atlas I speak of undertakes to answer this double question, not only with statistical figures, but with graphic illustrations in the form of maps.

On a series of maps of all the continents, of all the principal countries and of all the States of the Union, suggestive groups of red dots, circles and crosses tell the eye at a glance where the principal sources of water power lie, to what extent they have been brought into actual use, and how much remains for future development.

There stand, for instance, the half dozen continents of the world, each bearing its symbols, showing its rank as a power producer, actual and potential. As one looks at them he is conscious of a glimpse into futurity. He perceives that when coal becomes scarce there may be a great readjustment of industrial geography and of the centres of mechanical civilization.

He sees, for instance, an astonishing massing of red circles of potential power on the Continent of Africa. It immensely outweight North and South America combined! It is the earth's premier centre of water power. Gigantic Asia is a pygmy in comparison. Does this mean great glory for the Africa of future ages, when she shall once more lead the world as she did in the days of the pyramid builders?

But at present, it is satisfactory to observe, North America is at the head of the column. On no other continent has the utilization of water power been carried so far. The charts and accompanying statistics show that we have more than twelve million horsepower developed, and sixty millios still in the potential state. South America has less than half a million developed, but over fifty million potential.

For the world combined the figures are: Developed horsepower, twenty-three million; undeveloped horse power, four hundred and thirty-nine million.

CONSTANTINOPLE HAS 1,000 SQUALID ALLEYS

By Universal Service.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 31.—A strange city, this Constantinople! A city of one street and a thousand alleys. The one street—the Grande Rue de Pera—lined on either side with magnificent shops, shops that rival in their elegance those of Bond street, the Rue de la Paix or Fifth avenue.

The thousand alleys, squalid, reeking passages, where the overhanging bow windows almost meet overhead, each one built on a steep hill, a wearisome climb over slippery cobbles, rising from Galata, by the water's edge, to the heights of Pera.

Everywhere a kaleidoscope of color—Turks in red fezzes, allied officers and men in khaki, blue and olive gray; apples in vivid bizarre fashioned garments, women with tiny feet and great eyes, clad in every variety of hue; cobblers hammering away in little cage-like dwellings; weavers of carpets working almost in the roadway.

Pandemonium over all—the rattle of wheels as open cabs drawn by two wiry horses clatter by, the eternal clanging of the tramcar bells, the whistle of the Turkish policeman on point duty as he signals the traffic on with a wave of his red and white wand; the cries of the watermelon vendor, the chestnut seller, the cloth pedlar and the score of other itinerant merchants.

Between the gaps in the buildings wonderful glimpses of the Golden Horn, dancing blue in the sunlight, and Stamboul, the native city, on the far bank, which does, indeed, lend enchantment. But of Stamboul another—picturesque in the distance—day.

Here in Constantinople rumor is rife. War, murder, fire, looting, anything may happen. But until it happens let worry wait. . . . Kismet! So the Gardens, expensive open-air cafes, with entertainment of song and dance are crowded. In the cafes the Turk smokes his hookah and imperturbably plays cards in the tea shops of the Grande Rue the dainty dames of all nationalities sip their tea and gossip of dress and suchlike delights; at the Jockey Club the British colony foregathers and applauds their favorite actors.

Down in the Bosphorus the Iron Duke, the Ernest Nenan and other allied warships keep a sleepless and vigil. Why worry till something happens.

The sun goes down; the squalor disappears. From myriads of windows lights shine out until the whole hillside looks like a fairyland festooned with silver lamps. Less noise in the highways now; the traffic has almost died away, till only a passing motor car disturbs the night—only a passing motor car and the shrill voices of the street vendors, who cry their wares halt through the night.

There is no sound from the warships . . . but they do not sleep.
